The President's Broadcast A. F. L. and Farm Hands Taxing Taxes and Interest

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

It is taken as "hitherto shalt thou go and no farther; and here shall thy proud waves be stayed," addressed to on-rushing "radicalism."

The President's broadcast proves that gentlemen were mistaken who said the President intends to do away with "profits," making private enterprise an obedient unit in the new system of society.

The address means to optimistic conservatives that the New Deal desires only to be "helpful" to private enterprise, not choke it. But private enterprise must be good, and, with the New Deal, keep its eye on the ultimate happiness of the many.

The President's friends call attention to his frankness in admitting difficulties in various directions. Small industries rejoice in the suggestion that they may be allowed to go their own gait, freed from the NRA "lock-step."

High finance is disturbed because the President announced no plan to "stabilize currency" immediately.

High finance needs to control currency, make it expensive and deal it out profitably, as the British diamond trust deals out diamonds, always keeping them scarce.

A diamond trust could not do that if it didn't know how many diamonds would come on the market. It disturbs high finance not to know how many dollars and bonds are coming on the market.

It may be grievously surprised.

The American Federation of Labor, meeting in San Francisco, hears from its executive council, "We must have a living standard which will use the capacity of our industries and the capacity of our man power."

President Roosevelt would be gratified if the A. F. L. executive committee would tell him how that can be done.

The A. F. L. demands that NRA extend its protection to agricultural labor. Farm hands should have protection "in regard to wages, hours, organization, et cetera."

Sausages have already gone up 8 cents a pound and everything else has gone up. Organize the farm hand, give him a five-day week, six-hour day, and he will hardly have time to feed the stock, hitch and unhitch, and union men will be surprised at the price of food.

It is a long road when you start in pursuit of a "custom made" Utopia.

The old game for children was "button, button, who's got the button?" The new game for grown-ups is "dollar, dollar, who's got the dollar, and how shall we tax it?"

New York city, seeking $17,000,000 a month now, more later, for welfare relief, has already put a tax on income taxes.

To "tax a tax" is a new idea. If only deficits could be taxed the problem would be easy.

Of three new taxes, one will raise a protest louder than Milton's:

"Shout that tore hell's concave, and beyond
Frighted the reign of chaos and old night."

That plan would tax 1 per cent all incomes over $1500, and would mean taxing the "little man" who, feeling that taxation was never meant for him, has been cheerful about income taxes thus far.

Also, New York, following a tax on taxes, would put a tax on interest, taxing all mortgage interest.

As an increase of 15 to 30 per cent in the tax on income taxes is suggested, the man paying Uncle Sam $100 income tax would pay New York city $30.

It is a little complicated and made more so by a group of Gypsy fortune tellers, each with a roll of bills and nobody with anything smaller than $50, all of them found to be on the "public relief," which is our euphemism for "dole."

Some gentlemen arrested not long ago in New York for drunkenness were also found to be on the dole, which proved that they did not hoard public funds at least.

Providence, Oct. 2 (AP)—Peter G. Gerry was nominated for United States Senator by the Democratic State Convention today by acclamation. After Major Mortimer A. Sullivan of Newport, in a keynote address, had lauded the administration of President Roosevelt.

ALBANY MAN ADMITS HE IS FATHER

Through Boston Evening American photographs, carried on a Boston police circular, the mystery boy abandoned in Holy Cross Cathedral on the night of September 23 was identified today.

The boy is Raymond Graves, seven-year-old son of Frank E. Graves, Albany, N. Y., orchestra leader who calls himself "King Jazz," according to Albany police.

To Albany detectives, the musician is declared to have confessed abandoning the boy in the Cathedral here.

According to his purported admission, the stepmother, while she loved the boy, was unable to take care of him properly and viewed him as a burden because Raymond is partially deaf and has an impediment in speech. She insisted, Graves declared, that the boy be placed in a home.

Graves was taken into custody last night in Albany by Deputy Police Chief William J. Fitzpatrick and Detectives Patrick F. Lennon and John McDermott.

T. R., III, Pays $3 Fine in Cambridge

Theodore Roosevelt, III, grandson of former President Theodore Roosevelt and a Harvard sophomore, lent distinction today to East Cambridge court, but it cost him $3 to make the visit.

Roosevelt paid $3 costs when his case was filed after he had pleaded guilty to parking his car within 20 feet of a street intersection.

No-Fix Law Defied by Doctor

First defiance of the new "no fix" parking law came today when a Boston physician, who said he was answering an emergency call when he was given a tag, stormed into the clerk's office at Central Municipal Court and flatly refused to pay the $3 fine required of him.

"I'll go to jail first," the doctor, who refused to give his name, stormed. "The law is an outrage and I refuse to pay anything."

The doctor then explained that, in answering the emergency call, he parked in front of the patient's home in a hurry and when he

GIRL VICTIM IN $2056 HOLDUP

Two gunmen robbed Miss Elma Salvi, 22, of $2,056 in cash and checks today as she stepped from an apartment house at 123 Orchard street, West Somerville, on her way to make a bank deposit.

The sum was made up of rents collected by her father, Peter Salvi of Craigie street, Somerville, owner of the apartment house.

The two gunmen placed revolvers at Miss Salvi's side and seized an envelope containing the money.

The pair fled down Orchard street to Chester street and, 200 yards from the scene of the holdup, they leaped into a waiting automobile.

Miss Salvi defied the threats of the gunmen and gave chase. As the pair fled, a woman snatched a cap from the head of one of the holdup men, which was given police.

The loot was made up of $1633 in cash and the remainder in checks.

Arrest of two men on suspicion of the robbery followed 20 minutes after the holdup as a result of a Boston police radio broadcast.

VANDERBILT'S WIDOW TIPSY, SAYS MAID

New York, Oct. 2—From a shy, low-voiced, prim French maid, Supreme Court Justice J. F. Carew and counsel for Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, today drew additional testimony damaging to the court battle of Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt to regain custody of her 10-year-old daughter, Gloria.

For the first time, Mrs. Vanderbilt's cool and somewhat amused poise was broken when Maria Caillot, her former personal maid, told the court she had seen Mrs. Vanderbilt intoxicated on several occasions and that she could not recall the widow of Reginald C. Vanderbilt spending much time in Gloria's company or ever lunching with her daughter.

She started in her seat as the maid outlined the details of her life with Mrs. Vanderbilt in Paris from 1929 until early this year, and bent forward with a slight frown, intent on the girl's testimony.

Justice Carew asked: "Did Mrs. Vanderbilt spend much of her time at home?"

SAW HER DRUNK

The maid responded: "Sometimes she would be at home most of the day, not rising until late in the afternoon. Sometimes she spent all day in bed."

"What time did she get up?"

The maid said: "Sometimes one, two, sometimes three o'clock."

"Did she seem to have a good night's sleep?"

The witness thought she had.

"Did she ever have a headache?"

"She never said so."

Justice Carew then turned to the vernacular and asked:

"A hang-over?"

The maid appeared puzzled, and Smyth suggested that Justice Carew transalte "hang-over" into French. But Justice Carew said:

"I can't. There seems to be no equivalent for it." He said:

"Did you ever see Mrs. Vanderbilt intoxicated?"

"Yes."

"Many times?"

NOT WITH GIRL MUCH

"Well, sometimes. I don't know that I would call it many, many times."

"I don't remember seeing her."

"Did she ever lunch with her, spend much time with her?"

"No, not that I remember."

Vanderbilt Kin Hear Gossip Retailed

MRS. HARRY PAYNE WHITNEY MRS. LAURA K. MORGAN

New York court testimony concerning alleged drinking, love-making and loose-living in the home of Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt is heard by her mother, Mrs. Laura Kilpatrick Morgan, and by Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Mrs. Vanderbilt's sister-in-law. Mrs. Whitney seeks custody of Mrs. Vanderbilt's 10-year-old daughter, Gloria, heiress to ten millions. The hauling of skeletons from Vanderbilt family closets isn't relished by relatives, if their expressions, entering the courtroom, are an index to their feelings. Frost in Concord and Lexington

The finishing touch was given to the gardens in certain sections of the state last night when the first killing frost of the season was recorded. In Lexington the temperature dropped to 31 degrees, and in Concord to 31.8 above zero, leaving a fine white powder on the ground that reminded the beholder of snow. The frost this year is a week late, according to observers, who say that it usually makes its first appearance about Sept. 25.

CLUES GIVEN BY MYSTERY WOMAN AND HUSBAND

By Associated Press

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 2—Governor A. Harry Moore announced today, after a conference with District Attorney Samuel J. Foley of Bronx County, New York, that it is "New Jersey's hope and intention to bring Bruno Richard Hauptmann back to this state for trial before he is tried for extortion in the Bronx."

Amherst, Oct. 2—Part of the Lindbergh baby ransom money—a $20 gold certificate—turned up here today to provide a new angle in the investigation of the case.

The bill was identified by a local bank where it was taken for deposit.

State detectives were summoned and New York authorities were notified.

Partial back-tracking of the $20 certificate proved that it was taken in from a customer last week at a lunch cart operated by James E. Deady in Pleasant street, near the Massachusetts College campus.

By Associated Press

Washington, Oct. 2—The Washington Star said today that two secret witnesses had shattered the alibi offered by Bruno Richard Hauptmann to prove he was not the "John" of the Lindbergh kidnaping.

The Star said in a story by Rex Collier that one of the witnesses was understood to be the so-called "mystery woman" with whom District-Attorney Samuel Foley of the Bronx has held a number of private conferences. The other is her husband.

The paper added:

"Questioned as to his whereabouts on the night of the ransom payment, the stolid German carpenter, after some hesitation, said he had spent all that day and night at the home of a certain couple in New York city.

"Previously he had declared he was working in New York city as a carpenter on the day of the actual kidnaping, March 1, 1932, and that he spent that evening at his home in the Bronx. Mrs. Hauptmann corroborated these statements.

DENY HIS VISIT

"Investigators succeeded in locating the couple designated by Hauptmann and they flatly denied that Hauptmann had been at their home or in their company at any time of the day or night of April 2, 1932, when 'Jafsie' handed the box of ransom money over a cemetery

BANK ROBBED OF $20,000 BY FIVE

By Associated Press

Wallingford, Ct., Oct. 2—Five men robbed the Wallingford Bank and Trust Company of an undetermined amount of money today after threatening five employes and two customers with a machine gun and other weapons.

The robbers scooped all of the bills in sight, leaving behind the change. A preliminary estimate placed the loss as high as $20,000.

Ten minutes after the robbery the quintet sped away in an automobile reported as having Massachusetts license plates.

All of the employes were ordered to lie on the floor, while the two customers were told to sit down on a settee.

ever, indicated unusual interest in the girl's testimony.

Atty. Smyth then took up the questioning, asking about the attentions paid to little Gloria by her mother.

Mrs. Whitney, the child's aunt, contends Mrs. Vanderbilt neglected her and is not a fit parent.

Miss Caillot testified that early in the summer of 1922, while Gloria was ill in a New York hotel of a glandular ailment, Mrs. Vanderbilt led a gay, carefree existance in Paris. Smyth asked:

"Were there cocktail parties?"

"Oh, yes."

"DIRTY" BOOKS THERE

The witness said that she and Mrs. Vanderbilt returned to New York two days before Gloria underwent an operation, then went back again to Europe five days after the child was released from the hospital.

Miss Caillot was questioned then about the life led by Mrs. Vanderbilt when she returned to her New York home. Gloria was living with her then.

There were many parties given, she testified, with orchestra playing until five o'clock in the morning.

Smyth asked:

"Were there books around the House?"

When the witnes sreplied in the affirmative, Smyth asked her to describe them.

"They were very dirty!" said Miss Caillot, blushing.

Justice Carew wanted to know exactly what the witness meant by "dirty" and the maid explained that she referred, not to thumb marks or smudges on the pages, but to the character of the pictures.

"The pictures were the kind you are not supposed to look at?"

JUDGE REBUKES LAUGHTER

There was considerable tittering during this quizz, and Mrs. Vanderbilt and her sister joined the merriment. Justice Carew warned:

"I don't like this laughter. This is a very tough case."

Opposing attorneys agreed that it was.

The witness testified that on a voyage from New York to France in 1933 her mistress was constantly in the company of A. C. Blumenthal, a theatrical real estate operator. Their staterooms were close together, she said.

She also saw Blumenthal frequently at Mrs. Vanderbilt's New York home, Miss Caillot added. Smyt hasked:

"Do you remember any time Mrs. Vanderbilt had champagne in her bedroom during the day?"

"Oh, yes—five or six times."

"Was anyone in the room with her?"

"A man—I heard his voice."

This happened late in the afternoon, she explained; the man, whom she did not identify, usually stayed about "half an hour."

WITH AGNES HORTER

The witness then testified that Mrs. Vanderbilt ovet for a time at a New York hotel during which period she often drank liquor before breakfast.

Her close friend and frequent visitor there was Agnes Horter, an actress, said Miss Caillot.

Earlier the childish letters which little Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt wrote to her mother and closed with the words "with love", were exhibited.

The letters were introduced during cross examination of Emma Sullivan Keislich, the nurse of the 10-year-old heiress to $4,000,000, who also charges that Mrs. Vanderbilt is not a fit parent.

Nathan Burkan, attorney for Mrs. Vanderbilt, sought to show that Gloria's letters were evidence that she loved her mother. Miss Keislich did not think so.

"Mere form."

NEVER LOVED MOTHER

After introducing as evidence a letter which Gloria wrote to her mother last April which ended with "much love," Burkan asked:

"Isn't it true that the child wrote letters in the same vein to both her mother and her aunt?"

The witness replied in the negative, and volunteered information.

"Gloria feared her mother, but it was her duty to write to her. She was taught to."

"Did Gloria mean it when she wrote 'love'?"

The witness replied: "I told her to write 'love', it was mere form."

"Do you say that Gloria loves her mother?"

"No—she never did."

Mrs. Vanderbilt appeared in court wearing a black ensemble and a silver fox cape. Her sister, Mrs. Benjamin Thaw, wore a deep red tailored suit.

WILL BARE SKELETONS

Before they finish housecleaning in this notable battle, there will be as interesting an array of socialite family skeletons dragged out of the Whitney-Morgan-Vanderbilt closets as anyone would want to see, Attorney Burkan promised.

So lurid were the details of the life that little Gloria was forced to lead, according to Nurse Keislich, that Judge John F. Carew remonstrated yesterday.

"Woman, woman, stop! We have teeth in the front of our mouths, you know, so our tongues won't fall out."

With this mark to shoot at, Attorney Burkan declared:

"I'm going to ask Mrs. Whitney what kind of luck she had in bringing up her own children.

"I will show that she is not so hot as a mother herself."

That challenge brought on a lot of guesses, but Burkan didn't leave the guessers in doubt long. He confirmed suspicions that the sensational Evan Fontaine Burrows' suit against "Sonny" Whitney would find its way into the picture:

"I'm going to ask Mrs. Whitney all about Miss Fontaine and that lady's claim against her own son."

But Burkan had one obstacle to contend with that he hadn't exactly foreseen. When he tried to subpoena the papers in dancer Burrows' suit in 1925 there was a great deal of fussing and excitement, but the papers were gone.

New Vanderbilt Skeletons Rattle

NATHAN BURKAN — MRS. VANDERBILT

Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt is shown conferring with her attorney, Nathan Burkan, in the midst of the court battle for custody of her 10-year-old daughter, Gloria. Mrs. Vanderbilt maintained a scornful air in the courtroom while a former nurse of Gloria's testified to bedroom parties held by Mrs. Vanderbilt. More revelations are expected today as Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney continues her battle to retain custody of the heiress. Attorney Burkan vows he will rattle more Whitney-Morgan-Vanderbilt skeletons. Washington, Oct. 2 (AP)—Lloyd K. Garrison, chairman of the labor relations board, told reporters today he was going to give up his post to return to the University of Wisconsin as acting dean of the law school.

President Roosevelt recently expressed a desire for Garrison to remain at his labor board post beyond October 9 when his three-months term expires. Glenn Frank, president of the University, insisted, however, that Garrison return.

WALSH ASSAILS SHOE BUYERS IN WAGE PLEA

Washington, Oct. 2 (AP)—An assertion that shoe buyers in Massachusetts were forcing down prices and consequently forcing reduction in wages of shoe workers, was made to the NRA today by Senator Walsh (D-Mass.)

Walsh, who made his protest to Sidney Hillman, a member of the new NRA Administration Committee, was accompanied by Peter J. Walsh of Lynn, Mass., counsel for the United Shoe and Leather Workers Union.

They said that prior to inauguration of the NRA a 20 per cent wage increase had been arranged for Massachusetts shoe workers, but that since the NRA there had been a growing tendency in the factories to bring wages of skilled workers down toward the minimum wage level established by the code.

Chain store buyers, they declared, had been insisting on price reductions which in turn had resulted in wage reduction. Furthermore, they said, threats had been made that unless prices of shoes were lowered the business of the chain stores would be transferred to state which had lower wage standards than Massachusetts.

SUSPECT'S LEG INJURY PROBED

New York, Oct. 2—Bruno Richard Hauptmann was away from his Bronx home "on a trip" when the Lindbergh baby was kidnaped, the New York American says it was informed by a friend of the Hauptmanns, and he returned a week after the kidnaping with an injured leg.

Mrs. M. Auchenbach, a friend of the Hauptmanns and who spoke of them with kindly feeling told of the trip.

Early in February, 1932, she said, Mrs. Hauptmann came to her home, and said:

"We're going to take an automobile trip. We can get away because Richard isn't working steady."

She said she did not see the couple for three or four weeks. It was March 7, 8 or 9, 1932, that they returned, she said.

Before Hauptmann's wife departed, however, he appeared.

Mrs. Auchenbach said Hauptmann was calm and didn't seem concerned about the case. She asserted she noticed he limped when the couple left the house to go home.

HITLER LINKED WITH PRINCESS

By Universal Service

Paris, Oct. 1—Paris is buzzing with rumors, originating with the Pariser Tageblatt, leading newspaper of German refugees, that Chancellor Adolf Hitler at the end of this month intends to announce his engagement to a princess of the House of Saxe Coburg of Goths Norder in order to set up a dynasty.

According to the report, which is unverified, Hitler would then take the title of "Duke of the Germans." The House of Coburn is connected with nearly all the European royal lines.

Taxpayers Face Deadline Today

Boston taxpayers were warned that today is the deadline for payment of city taxes if they wish to escape interest charges. A last-minute rush is expected to swamp the city collector's offices before the close of business.

Meanwhile, deadline on the payment of state income taxes passed, with more than $1,000,000 received during the last day.

'TRAGEDY' MOTHER BARES GIRL'S LOVE FOR EDWARDS

BOY SPURNS HIS MOTHER DURING CUSTODY FIGHT

A mother and a grandmother struggled for the custody of the former's son in Suffolk probate court today, with the latter winning out.

Mrs. Katherine A. Shea of South Boston had petitioned the court asking for the custody of her 18-year-old son, James M. Shea, a senior at South Boston High School, and who, since 1921, has been in the custody of his grandmother, Mrs. Julia Shea of Fifth street, South Boston. The father died in that year.

The mother's petition claimed that the grandmother "could not exercise proper parental control."

Before Judge Frederick K. Dillon, the mother declared that because of the grandmother's "age and infirmity" she could not properly care for the youth.

GRANDMOTHER IN PLEA

The grandmother, 80, told the court she never stood in the way of the boy returning to his mother if he cared to leave her.

She said she gave the youth $3 a week as pocket money and supplied him with change when he went to school every day.

"I did not tell him he could not see his mother. He saw his mother and his sister, but the sister was not allowed in my house because I felt that one was enough," the grandmother said.

BOY SPURNS MOTHER

The boy himself took the stand. He told the court he saw his mother six times a year.

"Do you love your mother?" he was asked.

"Yes," he replied.

"Do you want to live with her?"

"As long as I can remember I have lived with my grandmother," he said.

"I would like to go on living with my grandmother, I wouldn't want to change," he said.

When asked if he knew whether or not his mother cared for him, the youth replied, "I don't know, she never came to see me when I was small, but once."

Judge Dillon declared he saw no reason for issuing a transfer order and allowed the grandmother to retain custody of the youth.

Medford Holdup Victim

Confronted by pistols of two robbers who waylaid her on the porch of her own Medford home, Miss Mary O'Neill, State street attorney, was obliged to hand over $118 collected in rents and $28 of her own money. Even her house and office keys were taken from her. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

JURY SHOWN HOME-MADE BRIDAL TROUSSEAU

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 2—Mrs. George McKechnie, mother of Freda, today took the stand as the first witness at the "American Tragedy" murder trial of 21-year-old Bobby Edwards, alleged betrayer and slayer of her daughter.

Mrs. McKechnie, a quiet-faced, bespectacled woman, was dressed in black, with a bone feather in her dark hat.

GIRL PHONE OPERATOR

Her daughter recently celebrated her 26th birthday, she said.

"Freda was a telephone operator up until the time she died," she said, simply.

Then the mother of Freda related the details of the romance between her daughter and the handsome young mine surveyor, who had a neighborhood reputation for being a ladies' man.

Through it all Edwards faced the witness with his hands clasped before him, gazing steadfastly and intently at Mrs. McKechnie.

"Freda and Bobby went to the same church," Mrs. McKechnie said. "Freda had a boy friend, George Thomas, but she gave him up for Bobby.

"Bobby used to visit Freda four and five nights a week. What did they do? Oh, Bobby would come in and just set.

"They would go for walks and to the movies sometimes. They were very friendly. When Bobby went away to Mansfield, Pa., college they corresponded.

"For Christmas Bobby gave her a pair of lingerie clasps. For Easter he gave her a red pocketbook. Freda carried it on—the last night she went out."

ROMANCE FADES

Then Mrs. McKechnie told how the romance "just dwindled away" after Bobby met Margaret Crain, 22-year-old music teacher of East Aurora, N. Y.

She said she had seen the Crain girl at Mansfield College when she visited there with Freda.

Another time she said she saw Margaret Crain in the back yard of the Edward's home. It was night.

"I heard a voice say: 'Honey, it's too hot. Please don't boss me.'

"I looked out (the Edwards and McKechnie houses adjoin) and there was Margaret Crain with her hand on Bobby's shoulders. I was surprised. Freda, at this time, was away from the house."

COURT SEES TROUSSEAU

Part of Freda's home-made bridal trousseau was offered in evidence as the mother told of her daughter's betrayal and the finding of her body in Harvey's lake.

A simple dotted voile dress with a blue sash, described by Mrs. McKechnie, was shown the jury with a gayly-stripped sports dress.

This was part of Freda's trousseau which she tried on for her mother's approval the day before she was allegedly lured on a midnight swim and struck down in the water with a blackjack.

Freda's mothe, testified to the happy mood of her daughter the day before her death.

"She tried on the dotted white dress—she called it an evening dress," said Mrs. McKechnie. She was never more cheerful."

She said on Sunday night, July 29, Freda and her friend, Rosetta Culver, walked up the street laughing together.

"Was that the last time you saw your daughter alive?" asked District Attorney Lewis.

"Yes," replied the witness.

Mrs. McKechnie said that when Freda did not come home the day after July 30, she asked Edwards where Freda was.

"I said to him: 'Bobby, something terrible has happened to Freda.'

"He said: 'Why, nothing has happened to her—what could happen to her?'

"I said to him: 'I don't know, Bobby, but that girl didn't call me last night. She never did that before.'"

GEN. MITCHELL SEES U. S. WAR WITH JAPAN

By Associated Press

Washington, Oct. 2—Brigadier General William Mitchell, retired, told the President's Aviation Commission today that "our most dangerous enemy is Japan and our planes should be designed to attack Japan."

Calling the loss of the Navy dirigible Akron "disgraceful," Mitchell told the commission that with 50 dirigibles the United States could destroy Japan within two days if war broke out.

CHARGES POLITICS

He said the United States should develop planes with a cruising range of from 6000 to 8000 miles.

Russia, he said, possessed planes with a radius of 3500 miles, which could be used either against Japan or Western Europe.

The outspoken advocate of a unified air service called the national advisory committee for aeronautics a "political organization."

Mitchell, former assistant chief of military aviation and a storm center in army circles since he began his efforts for a unified air service in the 1920s, said that the rigid airship was "a great implement in time of war."

DEPLORES AKRON LOSS

Dirigibles have a larger cruising radius than any other aircraft, he said, and "with competent crews competently handled, they are probably the safest" means of transportation.

Criticising the orders which sent out the Akron in the face of a storm, and its course, which he said brought it into the storm's path, he declared:

"People who do things like that oughtn't to be allowed to handle ships."

Mitchell said that "our good crews in this country have been killed off by accident after accident," and suggested that the government consult with the Goodyear corporation of Akron, O., and the Zeppelin company of Germany for establishment of dirigible lines "around the world."

With the United States possessed of 50 dirigibles, he said, "if Japan raised her head we could attack her directly and in a couple of days there'd be nothing left of Japan."

Jap Army Calls for War Preparations

By Associated Press

Tokio, Oct. 2—An official army pamphlet which urged Japan to make ready for a possible war with Russia spread uneasiness among the nation's economic leaders today.

This was reflected on the Stock Exchange. Leading shares declined on an average of two yen (about 60 cents).

Newspapers said members of the cabinet as well as civilians were taken back by the army's surprising manifesto.

It asserted the United States has three airplanes to Japan's one and that America wanted a navy larger than this country's in order to support vigorous policies toward the Orient.

MILLENS LOSE APPEAL DELAY

Denying a plea for delay, Chief Justice George H. Bingham of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals today ordered a hearing in Boston tomorrow on defense efforts to nullify the recent Millen-Faber trial in the state courts.

George Stanley Harvey, counsel for Murton and Irving Millen, asked postponement until January of his appeal from the United States district court denial of his petition for a writ of habeas corpus to transfer the trial from Norfolk County jurisdiction to federal court.

Chief Justice Bingham, who opened the fall sitting this morning with his associates, Justices Scott Wilson and James M. Morton, Jr., ruled there should be no postponement and Harvey was told to have District Attorney Edmund R. Dewing and Sheriff Samuel H. Capen in court tomorrow.

The Millens and Abe Faber are awaiting sentence of death for first degree murder in the killing of Patrolman Forbes A. McLeod during the Needham Trust Company robbery in February.

Defense efforts to interrupt the Norfolk County trial in April, on the ground that the constitutional rights of the defendants were in jeopardy, constituted a spectacular phase of the proceedings.

An appeal from the conviction is also pending before the State Supreme Court.

Yale News Sees Fraternities' End

New Haven, Ct., Oct. 2 (AP)—The ultimate collapse of junior fraternities at Yale University was predicted today by the Yale Daily News with the publication of an announcement that "Alpha Delta Phi will, for the present, elect no members from the class of 1937."

The announcement, carried in the news columns of the undergraduate publication, was signed by Robert C. Graham, president of the inter-fraternity council. It gave no reason for the decision but in an editorial the News commended the fraternity for its action.

Harvard Liberals to Quiz Candidates

The Harvard Liberal Club is asking for volunteers to interview candidates for public office, it was learned today, to find out why each is running for office, and to determine if he is suited for the office he seeks.

The interviews obtained will be published by the club, but the conclusions arrived at by the members as a result of these interviews will not.

Hubby, 2 Wives, 3 Kiddies in Polygamy Tangle

Two wives, three children and one husband were snarled up today in Worcester district court in a polygamy case, after a Winthrop wife, believed by her husband to have divorced him, had suddenly appeared, after years, on the scene of a second marriage.

Edward M. Caraker, 35, of Alvarado avenue, father of two children by the second marriage, was arraigned on a charge of polygamy and was held in $500 for a hearing next Tuesday.

Back on October 14, 1920, he married his first wife, Mrs. Emma W. Caraker, who now lives in Atlantic street, Winthrop. When they separated a few years later, Caraker a coke salesman, took their one child with him.

Subsequently, Caraker claimed to police, he was informed that his wife had divorced him. This was several years ago. A short time later, in Maryland, he married Miss Ruth Wilbur and they went to Worcester to live.

A few days ago, the first wife, learning that Caraker was in Worcester, went to that city to try and get their child back. She was amazed, she told police, to discover her husband had married again and had two more children.

The first wife denied that she ever had obtained a divorce from Caraker.

Titulescu Forces Rumanian Crisis

INSULL'S TRIAL OPENS AFTER LONG BATTLE

By Associated Press

Chicago, Oct. 2—Samuel Insull, Sr., head until 1932 of a $4,000,000,000 public utility system, went on trial in U. S. district court today for mail frauds alleged to have cost investors $143,000,000.

Insull, in a gray sack suit, was almost the last of the 16 defendants to arrive in court.

"I have nothing whatever to say," he declared.

He waved interviewers toward his son, Samuel, Jr., who entered the corridor with him.

A final defense motion came from Attorney Floyd E. Thompson, representing Insull, when Judge James H. Wilkerson asked if both sides were ready to try case 26,900, after a two-year legal struggle in which Insull was sought in three nations.

Thompson challenged the array of veniremen, claiming that the defense attorneys had not been allowed sufficient part in the lottery by which the prospective jurymen were chosen.

Insull was the first defendant as Clerk Joseph O'Sullivan called the roll, a list from the Blue Book of Chicago finance, including Stanley Field, banker and nephew of the late Marshall Field, Chicago merchant; Harold Leonard Stuart and Charles J. B. Stuart, president and vice-president, respectively, of Halsey, Stuart & Co., nationally known investment banking house.

MAY BE 4 MONTHS TRIAL

United States District-Attorney Dwight H. Green asked the clerk to add the name of Martin J. Insull, Samuel's younger brother, to the roll in the mail fraud case, after the 17 defendants had shaken hands all around and settled down for what may be four months of trial.

The name was read, but Martin Insull, indicted with the other for selling stock in the Corporation Securities Company of Chciago, using the mails in the selling campagin, was immune to prosecution on the charge. He was extradited from Orillia, Ont., on state charges only.

7 DIE IN BRITISH PLANE CRASH

By Associated Press

Folkestone, Eng., Oct. 2—An airplane with seven occupants crashed into the misty English channel only three miles from shore today on a projected flight to Le Bourget Airfield, France, killing all of them. Two of the passengers were women.

One of the victims was identified as Albert Desanno, 66, manufacturer, of Philadelphia. He had been living with friends at Woodford, Essex, about two months.

Austrian Nazi Plot Revealed in Tyrol

Innsbruck, Austria, Oct. 2 (AP)—The government tightened the state of siege in the Tyrol today in consequence of secret police information that a revolution was planged by united Nazi and Socialists. On discovery of large quantities of explosives bearing German factory marks and the year mark 1934, heavily armed guards were dispatched to public buildings, railroad terminals and communica-

Shamed 'Wife' Asks $25,000

Charging that Nathaniel P. Williamson, Boston insurance man, pretended legal marriage to her while still not finally divorced from a previous wife, Miss Catherine Kwast of Milton is bringing suit for $25,000. She was shamed and embarrassed by her false position in Williamson's home, she alleges.

April 10, 1932—Insull abdicates, agreeing in a secret meeting to putting Middle West Utilities, keystone of his system, into receivership, with himself as one of the receivers.

June 7—Resigns as receiver, complying with demand.

June 15—Sails from Quebec, settling in Paris on an $18,000 pension.

Oct. 5—Flees Paris for Athens.

Oct. 10—Arrested in Athens, begins long fight against extradition.

Dec. 27—Wins in Athens Appeal Court; later seeks Greek citizenship.

Feb. 27, 1933—Federal Grand Jury indicts Insull for mail fraud.

Sept. 19—United States files new documents in second attempt to extradite Insull.

Nov. 5—Greek courts having again found for Insull, the United States denounces its extradition treaty with that country.

Dec. 5—Greek Cabinet orders Insull to leave before January 1.

Dec. 15—Insull wins 30 days' delay in plea of illness.

March 10—The third ultimatum, after many delays, says Insull must leave Greece by midnight, March 15. His agents look for a refuge in Bulgaria or Rumania, but fail.

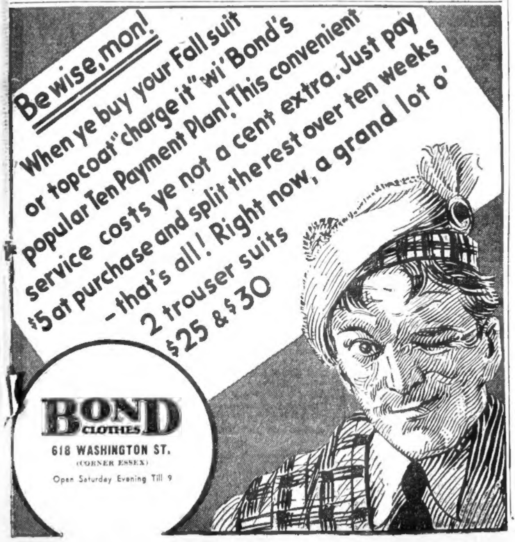
May 8—Hailed into federal court in Chicago, Insull is fingerprinted, jailed three days in lieu of $250,000 bond.

July 2—Insull pleads not guilty after losing claim that he was "shanghaied" from Turkey.

October 2—He is brought to trial, charged with issuing worthless stocks to the amount of $143,000,000, using the mails.



Be wise, mon! When ye buy your Fall suit or topcoat "charge it" wi' Bond's popular Ten Payment Plan! This convenient service costs ye not a cent extra. Just pay $5 at purchase and split the rest over ten weeks —that's all! Right now, a grand lot o' 2 trouser suits $25 & $30

2 'WIVES' FIND MATES WED

Two Greater Boston "brides" were enjoying anything but marital bliss today following charges that their supposed husbands had neglected to divorce previous wives before marrying them.

Miss Catherine Kwast, 27, of Milton, "bride" of Nathaniel P. Williamson, Boston insurance man, filed suit for $25,000 against her would-be husband.

She charged that Williamson induced her to marry him before his divorce suit from another woman became absolute. This, she claims thrust her into the condition of living with him, while not legally married.

Meanwhile, Miss Doris C. Moran, 17, of Pine street, Waltham, made the painful discovery that she was not Mrs. William B. Hartwell.

According to police, Hartwell had a wife in Texas at the time of his marriage to Miss Moran.

Quincy Man Hurt as Ditch Caves in Severely injured in a cave-in on Sea street, Quincy, Daniel Halter, 35, of Foster street, Quincy, was suffering from a possible fracture of the leg today.

Myrna Loy to See New York

By International News Service

Hollywood, Oct. 2—Though she has become known as the screen's perfect sophisticate, Myrna Loy has never traveled east of her home state, Montana.

The slender MGM actress admitted this today in disclosing plans for a six months' trip during which she will see all the places her screen stories have been written about.

"I've earned a vacation by years of hard work," declared Myrna. "Now I'm going to have a real fling—a trip to Broadway, London, Paris and from there on around the world."

And regardless of all rumors of romance—particularly with Ramon Novarro—Myrna says she is heart-whole and fancy free.

Well-Dressed Man's Body in Harbor

The body of a well dressed, unidentified man was found in Boston harbor today by two fisherment, Rocco Cemelli, Edward street, and Nicholas Conspyzmzo, Maverick street, both East Boston. The body was found about 100 yards off Jeffries point.

The victim was described as being five feet, 7 inches tall, weighing 145 pounds and dressed in a blue suit.

NEW NRA BOARD GETS TO WORK

By International News Service

Washington, Oct. 2—President Roosevelt's new Industrial Recovery Board was fecusing its attention on Gen. Hugh S. Johnson's famous "goldfish bowl," today as Chairman Clay Williams held his first meeting with the incoming board.

Next door to Secretary Leon Marshall's new office were Johnson and his personal secretary, Miss Frances Robinson, making preparations to leave the capital.

Johnson said he had made no definite plans regarding the future, but it was learned he contemplates returning to New York to become affiliated with one of the Bernard Baruch interests.

The new board has agreed that one of its first duties will be to reorganize the press relations of the NRA.

Several members of the new board favor a "new deal" for the NRA, with a definite swing away from Johnson's latter policy of dishing out only such items as had been passed on by a board of strategy, which Johnson designed to take much of the spotlight off his "goldfish bowl."

BLONDY RYAN IN A NEW LEAGUE; HE'S MARRIED

Still unabashed even after the New York Giants' crow-banquet of the weekend, John Collins "Blondy" "Singing" Ryan, spark-plug Giants' infielder, had entered another league today and was on his honeymoon.

The Lynn "They can't beat us" ball player who was a hero of last year's World Series was married last night in St. Andrew's Church, Flushing, L. I., to Miss Kathleen Barry of Belmond, Iowa, former United Air Lines flying hostess.

"Blondy" and his lady met four years ago when he was digging them out of the dirt for the Chicago White Sox and she was on a regular air run out of that city.

Despite "Blondy's" unusual loquacity, he kept the matter of his romance pretty much to himself, and until today only a few of his friends were aware that he was on the verge of committing matrimony.

Following the wedding ceremony last night, the couple left New York for Belmont and a visit to the bride's parents. Afterward they will come to Lynn and spend the winter.

Brazilian Women Stick to Knitting Despite 'Rights'

By Associated Press

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil—Brazilian law says that women were created equal to men.

Women may aspire to the presidency of the republic. They may vote. They may be—the constitution of July 16 says "shall be"—paid wages equal to those of men for equal tasks or equal accomplishment. They may not be refused any job in any walk of life by reason of their sex, or marital status.

But even the Brazilian Federation for Feminist Progress, which won these rights for women, continues to believe in cooking, mending socks and love.

Dr. Bertha Lutz, president of the federation, said that women appreciate their right to aspire to the presidency, but do not believe a woman will attain that post soon.

"We would be hard put to overcome the intense barrier of masculine ambition and egoism," she said.

Dr. Lutz, who patterns her ceaseless feminist campaign after those of women leaders of the United States, said she found it hard to determine whether brains or beauty count the more in winning the support of men.

TENDERNESS WINS

"Woman's tenderness and intelligence wins only superior men," she said.

While personally she favors birth control, Dr. Lutz points out that Brazilian feminism has no doctrine on the subject. Feminism of the United States is attractive to Brazilian women, Dr. Lutz said.

Buenos Aires (AP)—Except in San Juan province, in the Andean foothills, women of Argentine have not succeeded in winning the right to vote. But they are confident they will get it before long.

In recent years they have made an outstanding legal conquest—a law giving married women full civil rights as to property. It was one more blast at a tradition common in Latin countries which held that a husband had a right to direct his wife's property and control her wealth.

After this and other triumphs of feminism Argentine women, like others of South America, have stepped out of their old-fashioned seclusion. Liberal tendencies of a large British colony here and an influx of Americans after the World War did much to make Argentine women aspire to new freedom. With the liberalizing trend came sports for women. There are more women golfers in Buenos Aires than in any Latin city in the world.

Honor Von Hindenburg

Tannenberg, Germany, Oct. 1—Solemn exercises commemorating the birthday of the late President Paul Von Hindenburg will take place today. This is the 87th anniversary of his birth.

VAHEY, VANZETTI DEFENDER, DIES

Plymouth, Oct. 2—John P. Vahey, who defended Bartolomeo Vanzetti in a holdup trial which preceded the world-famous Sacco-Vanzetti murder case, was found dead in bed at his home in Court street here today.

The light over his bed was burning, and a paper was beside him, which convinced relatives that he died early in the night. He was 64 years old.

Vahey became a member of the firm of Katzmann and Vahey after Frederick G Katzmann, then district attorney, opposed Vahey in the Vanzetti trial.

Born and educated here, Vahey attended Boston University for his law studies. He was a member of the Old Colony Club.

Surviving is a nephew, James Vahey, also an attorney.

Death was due to heart disease, according to Dr. Arthur King of Duxbury, associate medical examiner.

WAR ON COUNTY RING PRAISED

Praising the Hearst newspapers for initiating the movement for reform of county system of government, Professor Edward P. Collier, instructor of government at Boston University, today declared that "county rings" must be wiped out, if government is to function efficiently.

"The Hearst papers in their drive against county government are public benefactors. For only through publicity and an aroused public can this menace be eradicated," he said.

"The county form of government should be abolished entirely. It is wasteful and inefficient. The county is not a natural unit of government in this state. A citizen does not think of himself as a citizen of county. He thinks of himself as a citizen of a city or town."

Professor Collier pointed out that there was no logical reason for the continuance of the county system of government here. Duplication and overlapping of government functions, he said, were but two of many reasons.

He suggested unification of police departments.

Professor Collier said there was more reason for the county system of government in the West, where the population is sparse. Here the system, he said, was obsolete. It is the duty of each citizen, he said, to urge their representatives in the legislature to change the present set-up of county government.

'RIVAL' FREED IN TRIANGLE

Arrested for alleged subornation of perjury in a romance involving a Worcester girl and her baby, John Croft, 36, Boston and Worcester magazine salesman, was freed today in Worcester court when police refused to prosecute.

There was insufficient evidence, police told the court, and the girl, now Mrs. Gladys White Reggiere of Worcester, had changed her story since Croft was arrested.

According to the woman and her husband, Dominic Reggiere of Millbury street, Worcester, he married her last May to learn her secret after she had accused him of being the father of her child.

After the marriage, she admitted to him, the couple said, that Croft was really the father. Croft was arrested in Boston on her charge that he had paid her $200 to testify that Reggiere was the father. In that hearing, Reggiere was ordered to pay a weekly sum for support of the baby.

Troops Mobilized in Georgia Strike

Atlanta, Oct. 2 (AP)—Six companies of the Georgia National Guard were mobilized early today by Adjutant-General Lindley Camp and moved to an unannounced destination.

The order of Governor Talmadge invoking martial law in any localities where troops were situated during the national textile strike has never been withdrawn.

The last act of the National Guardemen in the strike zones came when the adjutant-general's men took into custody 15 men at Shannon, Ga., termed "radicals" by General Camp. The general just released the men today.

Mother, Son Hurt by Plane Crash

Woods Hole, Oct. 2—Mrs. John Stubbs of Cuttyhunk and her six-year-old son, John, Jr., escaped with minor injuries when a seaplane of the Island Airways, Inc., operated by Harold Moon of New Bedford, was in collision with an auxiliary schooner close to the steamer pier here.

The plane broke the mast of the schooner and parts of it struck the pair. The canvas on one wing of the plane was torn off.

Ten Dead in Wreck

Warsaw, Oct. 2 (INS)—At least ten passengers were killed and 31 seriously injured in a train wreck at Krzeszodice station, Southwest Poland, today. Two express trains collided in a heavy fog.

Yes Indeed.. A BROILED BANANA is delicious with CHIPPED BEEF and CREAM

. . . MORE THAN ANY OTHER PLACE in the country New England relishes, repeatedly and often, Chipped Beef and Cream . . . on slices of delicately browned toast spread with rich creamery butter. It appeals to our sense of flavors when we are hungry for a simple yet hearty meal, with somewhat a smoky and salty tang to it.

● We are serving Chipped Beef and Cream this Tuesday . . . with added glory in the shape of a delicious Broiled Banana. I want you to see how the banana improves it . . . somehow it gives a balance of taste that certainly is delightful. It is just another spot where a broiled banana improves a famous menu.

● For dessert we are again serving Banana and Pineapple Gingerbread Shortcake with whipped cream, which proved to be so popular. We have found people are fond of the combination of pineapple and banana . . . on freshly baked gingerbread.

● And for a cereal dish . . . sliced bananas on either shredded wheat or corn flakes.

hedge to a man resembling Hauptmann.

"On further interrogation, it is said, the man and woman gave authorities some important information regarding Hauptmann and his friends, the nature of which has not been disclosed. Officials have indicated, however, that his information has a vital bearing on the damaging case being constructed against Hauptmann by the prosecution."

Seek Man Who Aided in Passing Ransom

By Associated Press

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 2—An associate of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, Lindbergh kidnaping suspect, who apparently knew that the German carpenter was passing "hot" ransom money, was being sought today by the New Jersey state police.

Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf at a press conference revealed that "about February 14," Hauptmann and a companion, still unidentified, appeared at the lumber yard of Cross, Austin & Ireland, in the Bronx. Hauptmann ordered a small wood panel, which cost 40 cents.

When William J. Reilly, yard superintendent, Schwarzkopf said, was tendered a $10 bill by Hauptmann, he noticed it was a gold note and hesitated. The second man, without a suggestion from Hauptmann, offered correct change and Hauptmann immediately withdrew the bill.

Reilly said the two men said they would return later in the day to get the panel but they never came back for it.

Schwarzkopf said Reilly "positively" identified Hauptmann from photographs but that he was unable to identify the second man from any photographs of others mentioned as friends of the German carpenter.

Parley on to See if Jersey Is to Try Hauptmann

By Associated Press

New York, Oct. 2—District Attorney Samuel J. Foley left shortly before 10 a. m. today for Trenton, N. J., to confer with Governor A. Harry Moore on the Lindbergh kidnap case.

The Bronx prosecutor said before leaving by automobile for the conference that he still regarded the extortion case against Hauptmann in the Bronx as "iron clad."

Foley was accompanied by two assistants and at Trenton they will meet with Governor Moore and Attorney-General David T. Wilentz of New Jersey. Governor Moore said yesterday that New Jersey probably would ask for extradition of Hauptmann before trial of the extortion case here, which Foley has said might begin next week.

WON'T BALK JERSEY TRIAL

The district attorney said there was little he could say about the conference in advance of the meeting, but he expressed a belief that there was nothing he could say in Trenton about extradition.

He believed the conference would discuss the general aspects of the case. Foley has maintained for some time that he would place no obstacle in the way of extradition in advance of trial here if New Jersey had a good case.

Investigation of Bronx angles of the case and the questioning of acquaintances and friends of Hauptmann continued in Foley's absence.

William Dreissigachre of 218 West 78th street, described as an intimate friend of Hauptmann, was ordered to return for questioning today after an interview that lasted until after midnight last night.

MENTAL TEST PLANNED

Dreissigachre said he had known Hauptmann since 1931, described the prisoner as "always thrifty," pronounced him a "nice fellow," and said he thought him innocent of any part in the Lindbergh kidnaping.

Foley's companions on the trip to Trenton were Assistant District Attorneys Arthur Carney and Nicholas Delagi. Foley said he expected to return late this afternoon.

The name of a second alienist selected by District Attorney Foley for the test was announced today. He is Dr. Richard H. Hoffmann of New York. Foley previously announced the name of the first one selected as Dr. S. Philip Goodhart, professor of clinical neurology of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University.

Murder-Kidnap Net Tightens on Suspect

Testimony of William B. Dennis will enable police to prove, they say, that Bruno Richard Hauptmann, Lindbergh kidnap-murder-extortion suspect, was near the Lindbergh home on the night of the crime. "I saw this man," says Dennis, studying a photograph of Hauptmann.

What Would You Do?

If your husband were a kidnaper, an extortionist, the killer of a child, would you protect him?

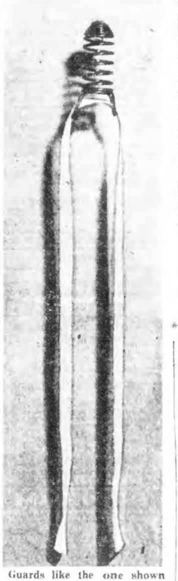
As a wife, the law gives you the right to refrain from testifying against him. But would you avail yourself of that right?

These questions are prompted by an interest in what is going on in the mind of the wife of Bruno Hauptmann, the man under arrest as a suspect in the Lindbergh kidnaping.

There is no indication that Mrs. Hauptmann has concealed anything from the proper authorities. On the contrary, it is reported that she has disclosed everything she knew bearing on the case.

The Boston Evening American will pay $10 for the best letter on the subject, $5 for the second best and $1 each for the next five most interesting opinions.

Address your letters to the Lindbergh Editor, Boston Evening



Guards like the one shown above were worn by the Lindbergh baby to keep him from sucking his thumbs. When ransom extortioners returned the child's sleeping garment, tapes of the thumb guard were still attached. The thumb guard itself was found near the Lindbergh home shortly after the kidnaping.

DIONNE BABIES OUT OF DANGER

Callander, Ont., Oct. 2—The intestinal toxemia which threatened the life of one of the 127-day-old Dionne quintuplets and rendered the four others seriously ill now is completely cleared up, their physician, Dr. A. R. Dafoe, announces. He said:

"Their condition has been improving steadily of late, but I wanted to make sure that every sign of the ailment has been erased before I became too optimistic."

Stockbridge Fire Destroys Hotel

Stockbridge, Oct. 2 (AP)—Fire early today destroyed the 20-room hotel and dance hall here owned by John Astore, causing a loss of $9000. Astore removed his sick wife, who discovered the fire, to safety.

KIDNAP GUARD, STEAL SAFE

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 2—Three bandits kidnaped the watchman of the Ebling Brewing Co. here today, loaded the firm's safe, containing about $1000, on a truck and escaped.

Felix Greene, the watchman, was released about a mile from the plant.

To steal the safe, the robbers had to use jacks and in loading it on the truck used a slide board.

Hauptmann's Wife Should Aid Him, Woman Writes

Mrs. Bruno Hauptmann is faced with a decision that has a bearing not only upon herself, but upon her child, her husband, and even upon the state itself. Should she fall back upon the civil law which gives a wife the option of testifying against her husband?

Should she, on the contrary, volunteer such information as she has?

Will her duty to her child best be served by withholding or by extending her intimate knowledge of her husband?

A letter signed, ANN LUBARSKY, of 363 Water street, Quincy, says:

"To protect such a reprehensible being would be a violation of my better instincts, and nullification of every child's inalienable right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

Another note was struck in a letter signed EDITH MAXWELL THORNQUIST, of 11 Shackford road, Reading, in which she says:

"A wife . . . acting from an instinct of self-preservation, should consider whence that protection comes, and then to acknowledge the necessity for the law."

One contributor decided neither to help nor to hinder the authorities. Signed MISS GERTRUDE McLAUGHLIN, 66 Crosby street, it said:

"If he were my husband and committed this crime, I should take my baby and leave him, and let the authorities take care of the rest."

These letters are not necessarily the winners. They were selected for mention principally because they represented the consensus of the contributors to date, or because their ideas were so diametrically opposed to that consensus.

'AH, WILDERNESS!' SCORES AT PREMIERE -:- MYRNA LOY GIVEN NEW LEADING ROLE

By GEORGE HOLLAND

The head man of the American Theatre came to town last night. Came to town and went to town in the neatest piece of play-acting the season will yield, in a play he might have written himself—only Eugene O'Neill did. As a matter-of-fact, he did write a play himself some 25 years ago with a set of characters similar to those which Mr. O'Neill has webbed into the plot of "Ah, Wilderness!" That play was called "Fifty Miles to Boston," and although all I know about it is what I have read between covers, there is a distinct recollection that it had a lovable but drunken brother-in-law, a nice father and mother an—. Excuse me. This is about Mr. O'Neill's play "Ah, Wilderness!", and about George M. Cohan, the First Actor not Author.

The Theater Guild presented this incongruous but famous combination in whole season in New York, at the Plymouth Theater for the Boston premiere of what will be a run. There was joy and there was a multitude. Rightly. Under the hideous self-consciousness of having cheered three out of the past four major theatrical entrants this season, your incredulous correspondent nevertheless finds himself, a trifle woozily, too, with the realization that the most satisfying theatrical evening of them all thus far is an hour or two only in the past.

George Holland

I never have seen George M. Cohan so artful, magnetic, convincing and charming, nor have I heard O'Neill so entertaining.

Do not be misled by that title, "Ah, Wilderness!" That is Mr. O'Neill going to Bartlett's quotations, even as he went to Swinburne, Wilde, Khayham and Shaw for a device or two in his playwriting. Mr. O'Neill played hob with the poets last night even to the extent of letting a dissolute but sober bar-fly serve a fast line about the poets Kelley and Sheats. However.

"Ah, Wilderness!" is a George M. Cohan comedy-drama, human, folksy, simple, homely, amusing, gripping, thrilling. The O'Neill flair for the unorthodox comes to a head just once or twice, and chiefly when he permits his lovesick juvenile to address a soliloquy to the moon and the stars and the trees and the brids, without benefit of at least one other actor. But you don't object at all.

Mr. O'Neill's story is that the young son of a small-town newspaper publisher gets drunk and his father gets around to giving the boy a lecture about booze and women. Before the boy gets drunk he has lifted some love-notes from the poets and written them to his girl, whose father is an old Connecticut so-and-so. After the boy gets drunk, he meets the girl in the moonlight and the two kids swear eternal fidelity. After this, Nat Miller, the father-publisher, gets around (as was said above) to giving the boy "a piece of his mind."

If you wish to see the most masterful scene of acting in many years you must see "Ah, Wilderness!" Mr. Cohan acts it in the last scene of "Ah, Wilderness," when, stammering in his parenthood and supplementing Mr. O'Neill's words with the great understanding that every First Actor should possess but which this one does, the famous star warns his beloved adolescent that bad women have their place but the place is not necessarily in his son's experiences. Here was perfection in the craft.

Elisha Cook, Jr., duplicating the grand trouping which set New York agog, was far beyond any critic's cavil in his performance of Richard, the yearning and unsettled son of the publisher. Joseph Allen was great as Sid, the brother-in-law. He had the folks in stitches, and was certainly a card. That description isn't very fly, flip or modern, but Mr. O'Neill had an easy time in getting responses, especially from us oldsters, quite simply by timing his play in 1906, and thereby, with the old expressions like skidoo, touching us to the heart—or quick.

Jean Adair, by the way, was splendid as Ma Miller. Two important certainties develop from "Ah, Wilderness!" George M. Cohan—well, there never was another. Eugene O'Neill is a much better showman than his idolators like to admit.

Tragedy Survivor at Orpheum

An eye witness of the Morro Castle disaster tells a realistic story of the happenings on the fateful night at sea at Loew's Orpheum this week, where Bob Hall interviews William W. Tripp of Dorchester, cadet enigneer on the last cruise of the luxurious liner.

Tripp was at the engine room telegraph board on the morning of the fire which cost the lives of over a hundred passengers.

He Learned About Women

Mae West, above, wins new admirers in "Belle of the Nineties," which comes to the screens of the Paramount and Fenway on Thursday and re-opens the Scollay Square on Friday.

'Club Girls' at Howard

"Night Club Girls," starring Hazel Miller, opened the new program at the Old Howard last evening, where an all star burlesque bill provides one of the ace shows of the seasons.

Miss Miller's charms and talents have won her the spotlight as an entertainer with Boston audiences, and she is ably abetted by a cast of fun-makers and lovely girls. Charles "Peanuts" Bohn, with his wise-cracks and clever dialects, is another established favorite in burlesque, and others on the program include Max Coleman, Shirley Wayne, Kenza Vinton, Marty Bohn, Roberta Birch and Douglas and Brooks. Nathano Brothers, Nolan, Mae and Burnett round out the stage presentation, which is elaborately staged.

On the screen are "Ace of Aces," with Richard Dix as the star, and Ann Harding and Niles Asther in "Right to Romance."

There are three daily performances at the Howard, and a gala midnight show on Fridays. Complete returns from the World's Series will be given on every playing day.

On Tremont Screen

Opening tomorrow at the Tremont are two major screen attractions, featuring "Design for Living," with Miriam Hopkins, Fredric March and Gary Cooper in the leading roles and "Hold That Girl," with James Dunn and Claire Trevor in star roles. Mickey Mouse in his latest adventures and other short screen subjects complete the bill.

Tonight brings the final showings of Helen Hayes and Ronald Colman in the Sinclair Lewis novel, "Arrowsmith," and "You're Telling Me," with W. C. Fields and Joan Marsh in star parts.

New Star Will Be Featured in 'Eyes of the Eagle' Before 'The Thin Man' Sequel

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Oct. 2—Hollywood doesn't realize Myrna Loy's popularity throughout the country. Gradually she has built herself a following that would make Greta Garbo weep if she stopped to realize what has happened these last few months. Myrna is every man's idea of how an attractive woman should look and every woman's style ideal.

She is moving over to Paramount on a loan from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer before she begins on the second edition of "The Thin Man." Paramount is pretty happy, too, that Myrna is to play the lead in "Eyes of the Eagle" by Nell Shipman and Phil Hurn, with Henry Wilcoxon as her leading man and I guess I'd better forget that title because this picture becomes "Wings in the Dark."

Some months ago I believe I mentioned that Max Magnus, who had been a well-known scenario writer in Germany, had come here after the exodus of many film people from Germany. He and Eric Pommer, who also left Berlin when UFA closed its doors, have gotten together and Max has written a corking scenario called "Love Without Words." It's the life of Tschaikowsky and when Pommer puts it on the screen he will incorporate all the beautiful Tschaikowsky music, making the picture one of his specials for the coming year.

Mady Christians has a lot to live up to if she is as good as they say on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot. Harry Rapf, who is just back from putting his son in Dartmouth, is concentrating on this first Christians drama, "The Wicked Woman" and seeing to it that she gets every chance in her first American starring picture. Interesting that Harry should have signed Charles Bickford on a long term contract and given him the male role opposite Miss Christians as his first MGM production. Interesting because Bickford who has always been the menace, becomes the hero and a romantic one, too.

It wouldn't surprise me in the least to see Joan Bennett signed on a long term contract by Paramount. They are just cr-azy over her on this lot and every time a story comes up some one of the bosses says "it's just perfect for Bennett." That must be comforting to her, considering the difficulty she had at the Fox Studio. She has just agreed to play the feminine lead in Lanny Ross' picture, "Mississippi," and it's to be a lulu with W. C. Fields in the comedy lead and the music and lyrics by Rodgers and Hart, with Eddie Sutherland directing.

Mrs. Conrad Nagel is back in Hollywood looking more beautiful than at any time since I knew her as Ruth Helms. She says she has made no plans to marry Sidney Franklin nor anyone else. "I am just trying to adjust myself," said Ruth. She and her little daughter are living in the Beverly Hills house; Conrad is living at Malibu. Although he and Ruth are divorced, he met her at the boat and they continue to be good friends. Neither will comment on the others romantic attachments which, after all, is as it should be.

Maxie Furman at Park

Opening last night at Minsky's Park theater, "Templations of 1935" presents still another of the all star programs that have been featured since the opening.

Paul Morokoff staged the elaborate production, which features among the headliners Sylva La Veur, in original and startling dance creations, Louis Stewart, Rose La Rose, and the Washboard Four Serenaders, popular quartet in Harlem melodies and fast stepping dance routines.

WYNN ANSWERS RADIO CALL TONIGHT

The irrepressible Ed Wynn, "Fire Chief of the Airways," once more takes his place among the ether entertainers tonight (WEEI), when he opens his new series of silly sallies with Graham McNamee at 9:30 p. m. The Chief admits that the programs are going to be "different this year, as usual," and instead of giving the familiar operas he will put forth his own original burlesque slants on current topics. Eddie Duchin's tuneful rhythms will provide the musical atmosphere.

The premier of the all-star Caravan program, featuring Walter (The Man on the Flying Trapeze) O'Keefe, alluring Annette Henshaw, popular songstress, Ted Husing and the music of Glen Gray and his classy Casa Loma orchestra, is ready and waiting to be broadcast tonight (WNAC) at 10:00 p. m.

Among the musical highlights to be aired are "Chinatown," "Born to be Kissed", "Pardon My Southern Accent", "You're a Builder-Upper" and "Out in the Cold Again." Walter will give his now-famous interpretation of that old song which he resurrected and from which he derives his nick-name.

. . . Bing Crosby, the Boswell Sisters and Georgie Stoll's orchestra present another stanza of West Coast melody and harmony tonight (WNCA) from 9:00 to 9:30 p. m. . . . George Givot, proprietor of "Acropolis No. 7," with his cast and Freddie Rich's music on this eve (WAAB at 10:30 p. m.) . . .

Gladys Swarthout and John Barclay star in "Miss Springtime," presentation tonight (WEEI at 10:00) of the Beauty Box program. Song hits include "First Meeting," "Angels Have Called It Love," "A Corner on Love" and "Sweet Is the Night."

. . . New series of "Hands Across the Border" programs open tonight (WBZ) at 9:30 p. m., designed to give Canadian ear-cuppers a composite picture of different sections of the U. S. by means of narrative, music and occasional dramatic episodes . . . Tonight's airing to be devoted to New England, with a version of the "Stein Song" . . . being sung and played.

. . . Premier of new dramatic sketches on this eve. (WBZ) at 9:15 p. m. . . . initial performance entitled "The Boys' Escape," dealing with the vicissitudes of two orphan boys and their ultimate "escape."

Special Jury to Hear Ashley Case

London, Oct. 2 (AP)—The Ashley divorce case, in which Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., has been named coarespondont, will be heard about Dec. 1 by a special jury selected from persons of high social standing, according to Lord Ashley's lawyers.

It is understood there will be no defense, which is expected to speed the case through the court. No damages will be sought but the costs are expected to total about $10,000 because of extensive preliminary work.

Walter Raymond Dies in Pasadena

Pasadena, Cal., Oct. 2 (INS)—Walter Raymond, 83, nationally known hotel man, builder and operator of the Hotel Raymond, Southern California's first large tourist hotel, died today after a long illness. He was a native of Boston.

Tune Slowly for Europe

This Ear—That Air

By N. F. T.

This fellow of the funnies, the reckless rock 'em and sock 'em "Popeye," is, in my opinion, likely to prove a formidable radio foe of the famous Joe Penner in due early time. Right now, this "Popeye" person is confining his comedy to the printed page and stage, with a few exceptions. One of those departures is tonight, when he holds forth for the "Secret Agent X-9" Chief during the weekly period (WAAB) occupied by the X-9 head man. Meaning at 6:30 p. m.

N. F. T.

In reality, the slam bang sailorman character, made what he is today through the Boston American strip bearing his name, is portrayed in life and movies by one Billy Costello. Billy's presence in the flesh behind the Metropolitan Theatre footlights this week, has been the reason for some out-of-the-ordinary crowds. Like all exceptionally talented stage performers these days radio program possibilities appeal strongly to him. Either I am having an acute hunch, or else there is no such thing, but something down deep is constantly whispering that Billy Costello as "Popeye" is destined for big things in broadcasting. Doubt it, those who will, but Billy Costello is an uncurable spinach addict, quite like the adventurous sailor he impersonates.

THINGS YOU DON'T HEAR, but must read, Ozzie Nelson, the ozone orchestra pilot, was All-Eastern quarterback for Rutgers a few years back. Even now, Ozzie is spending much spare time coaching young hopefuls at his Alma Mater, on the banks of New Jersey's rippling Raritan . . . Frank Parker, the network tenor extraordinary, has landed a contract to make discs for a big British recording outfit, after one of his American solo turns was heard in England . . . Eddie Duchin, the Boston chappie (Cambridge, to be exact), of musical directing prominence, takes charge of the music for the Ed Wynn half hour, as being renewed (WEEI) tonight . . . Wayne Henry Latham, a real production mainstay and a popular voice among listeners, has apparently had difficulties with the reorganized WBZ-WBZA works. At least, Wayne Henry won't be heard there much longer. It happened Saturday night last, whatever it was . . .

Best Bets Tonight

7:30 P. M.—WEEI—After dinner revue.

6:30 P. M.—WAAB—Weekly radio meeting and quarter hour for "Secret Agent X9" followers and featuring word from "The Chief." Presented under Boston Evening American auspices.

8:30 P. M.—WEEI—Dance music by Wayne King's Orchestra of Chicago.

9:00 P. M.—WBZ—New Lawrence Tibbett concert presentation.

Best Tomorrow

7 to 8 A. M.—WBZ—Regular musical clock novelty hour, furnishing the correct time at five-minute intervals throughout.

8 A. M.—WBZ—Religious period of "Morning Devotionals" with spiritual offering in words and music.

Malden Girl Wed Secretly in April

A wedding which took place last April was announced today by Mrs. William H. Howard, Summer street, Malden. The marriage is that of her daughter, Marion, to Herbert F. Ross, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C. Ross of Winchester.

The bride is a graduate of Wheaton College '31 and the Pierce Secretarial School. Ross is a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and is now associated with a publishing company.

Church to Celebrate

St. James Episcopal church, in Roxbury, will be 100 years old tomorrow. A celebration will be held, with many noted clergy in attendance.

You Hear Him on the Radio

WALTER O'KEEFE

Walter O'Keefe . . . The Man on the Flying Trapeze . . . Because, no matter where he goes . . . Except to church . . . He has to sing this old-time ballad . . . Which he has made into a best seller . . . Even though it was old before he was born . . . The birthplace being Hartford, Ct. . . . On August 18, 1900.

Walter's mom was Mary Mulcahy . . . And his father Michael O'Keefe . . . So you know where Walter got his wit and humor . . . Hartford being known as "The Birthplace of the O'Keefes."

The chattering comedian attended Wimbledon School . . . Near London . . . While visiting relatives . . . Then enrolled at St. Thomas' Academy . . . Near Hartford . . . To study for the priesthood . . . But transferred to Notre Dame . . . Where he sought out a house where he thought he would like to live . . . Rang the bell . . . Asked if he could hire a room for a year . . . And was told by the woman, "I'll have to speak to Mr. Rockne when he returns," . . . And she did . . . And Walter did live with Knute for a year as it happened . . . Both enjoying the joke.

At South Bend Walter found many kindred souls . . . Comedians all . . . Such as Charles Butterworth . . . And Eddie East and Ralph Dumke . . . Who are the "Sisters of the Skillet" . . . And they had a lot of fun with amateur theatricals . . . Until the war interrupted . . . And Walter enlisted in the Marines . . . Although only 17 . . . But was kept on this side.

Mustered out he sought fame in the entertainment world . . . And wrote a play for John Golden . . And next sent a witty wire to Texas Guinan . . . Which brought him a job entertaining her customers . . But next became a $25 real estate salesman . . . Which was not so good . . . Relinquishing this for a three-year engagement at Barney Gallant's place . . . In Greenwich Village . . . Which was better . . And where he wrote his own songs . . . Concocted his own skits . . . And did mimics.

Then Hollywood called . . . And Walter . . . With Bobby Dolan . . Wrote music for Ina Claire's picture, "The Awful Truth" . . . And other movies . . . After which he returned to New York . . . To discover "The Man on the Flying Trapeze" . . . Make records and start in Broadway for eight months in the "Third Little Show."

It was only a step then to radio . . . With Walter master of ceremonies . . . On various programs . . . Including one run as pinch hitter for Walter Winchell . . . And now you hear him on the Camel Caravan.

Tomorrow's Radio Personality will be that of Phillips Lord, or Seth Parker, the philosopher.

HOW ABOUT YOUR CHEVROLET?

There's a nip of frost in the air already. Old Man Winter's right on the job with many a cracked cylinder and frozen water-jacket up his sleeve for the careless Chevrolet owner who forgets.

But Eveready Prestone makes Winter gnash in vain. Once it's in . . . he's fooled. And your Chevrolet is safe. Even if he gets tricky and sends a spell of warm days, Eveready Prestone won't boil off.

Eveready Prestone is approved by Chevrolet and all other car manufacturers. Absolutely safe. Odorless. Won't damage finish. Your dealer has a chart that shows how little all-winter-long protection costs. Guaranteed by the National Carbon Company, Inc.

Based on a twenty-year average, freezing weather is due in Boston October 24th.

Barbara Holmes gives her patrons a card of introduction from the bureau to the agency or person offering the rental.

STORES MAY BE MODERNIZED THROUGH FHA LOANS

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

(This is the 19th of a series of articles explaining the new National Housing Act, which, under facilities developed by the Federal Housing Administration, enable home owners to obtain inexpensive, easy-to-repay loans for improving or repairing their homes.)

Modernizing may prove to be the way to take "For Rent" signs off vacant stores and shop buildings. No progressive tenant wants an old, dilapidated structure. Buildings in a good location and in good condition, however, usually rent without delay.

You can get loans now from your local bank or other financial institution to modernize stores, shops and other types of business property.

The National Housing Act has made money available to property owners for this purpose on the most reasonable terms ever offered.

You can borrow as much as $2000 and pay it back monthly over a period up to three years (five years in special cases).

To Charles J. C. of Newtonville:

Only expenditures for repairs and permanent equipment incurred since August 1 can be borrowed on under the Federal Housing Act, which would seem to take the bill for your oil burner ineligible. Depending on your financial condition, the construction of a garage at a cost of $500 is a proper basis for a loan application. Take the matter up with the National Shawmut Bank.

HOUSING EDITOR.

GET REPAIR ESTIMATE

To Mrs. Josephine M. of Everett:

Presuming that you mean the home modernization and renovation program of the Federal Housing Administration, you are advised to, first determine how much you need for whatever repairs you are contemplating, and then make application to your local bank. Everything depends on your ability to repay and the amount that you can borrow and the term of the loan will depend on how your situation impresses the bank.

HOUSING EDITOR.

To J. M. of Woburn:

You may go either to the Tanner's National Bank of Woburn, Woburn National Bank, or the First National Bank of Medford.

HOUSING EDITOR.

To Mrs. Ellen A. B. of Charlestown:

First determine through a reputable contractor just how much work you propose to have done will cost. Then, go to your local bank and make application for a loan under the Federal Housing Act. If the purpose proposed by you is eligible, and your financial situation is all right, a loan will be made. If there is no local bank qualified under the contract of insurance with the Federal Housing Administration, then you can make application at a Boston bank.

HOUSING EDITOR.

U. S. INSURES LOAN

To Fred L. L. of Providence, R. I.:

Any loan made under the regulations of the Federal Housing Administration for home modernization and repair, is made on the unsecured note of the borrower and no mortgage should be required. The fact that the government insures the loan makes the requirement of security through mortgage or collateral unnecessary. However, it is possible that the bank to which you made application is not qualified under the terms of the act with a contract of insurance.

The following banks in Providence are qualified to make loans under the Federal Housing Administration: The Blackstone Canal National Bank, the Columbus National Bank of Providence, the High Street Bank and Trust Company, Industrial Trust Company, Lincoln Trust Company, the Mechanics National Bank of Providence, Morris Plan Company of Rhode Island, the National Bank of Commerce and Trust, the Phenix National Bank of Providence, Providence National Bank, Rhode Island Hospital National Bank and Union Trust Company.

HOUSING EDITOR.

To Mrs. E. P. of Roxbury:

First determine with the assistance of a contractor what the work that you propose to have done will cost. Only repairs, modernization and renovation are permitted. With the figures thus obtained, go to your local bank and discuss the making of a loan with them. You will be asked to make out a property owner's credit statement from which the bank will determine whether or not you are entitled to the loan you ask. The term of years will be decided between you and the bank. The Federal Housing Administration accepts the bank's judgment as to the term of years and extent of the loan.

HOUSING EDITOR.

Repair Loan Is Open to All

Any property owner, individual, partnership or corporation may apply for a Modernization Credit Plan loan.

The loan is to be used solely for property improvement.

It may be secured at any national bank, state bank, or trust company, savings bank, industrial bank, building and loan association or finance company approved by the Federal Housing Association.

The amount of the loan may be from $100 to $2000. The note which the property-owner signs may run for any number of months, from one to five years.

The security required is that the property-owner have a regular income and a good credit record.

Piccard's Balloon to Soar 19 Miles

Paris, Oct. 2 (AP)—A balloon higher than the cathedral of Notre Dame and with a capacity of 147,000 cubic yards when inflated will be used by Prof. Auguste Piccard in his next stratosphere flight, he says in a copyright article in Le Journal.

Prof. Piccard estimated the balloon would reach a record-breaking height of 19 miles. It will weigh more than a ton and will have an aluminum gondola, shaped like a diving bell.

Baby Contest Still Going Strong as Close Nears

And still they come. Marching across the pages of this newspaper in groups of three and columns of eight, babies, and yet more babies—rather photographs of babies—make their rhythmic way, with flashing eyes and glowing cheeks, to the American Legion New Era Baby Contest G. H. Q. (general headquarters), James E. Welch Post, 23 Phillips street, Boston. Swinging along with the parade are: Nadia Marie Bowen of Allston, Robert Noonan of Somerville and George Schlack of Dorchester. The contest, sponsored by the James E. Welch Post, to determine the typical American Legion baby of Massachusetts, is fast drawing to a close, with the post headquarters piled high with the pictures of cherubic youngsters, one of whom perhaps will be the choice of the judges for the coveted title and cup. However, it is not yet too late to enter the contest, if parents and guardians act quickly and send their babies' picture to the Welch Post. Do not send pictures to the Boston American office. The Boston American publishes pictures selected at random at the Legion headquarters.

FRANCE STORES METALS FOR WAR

Paris, Oct. 2 (AP)—France decided today to store metals needed in time of war.

The government's fear of the scarcity of materials to equip the army led to President Lebrun to decree a prohibitive export tax on waste copper, aluminum, zinc, nickel and tin. The action follows similar measures taken by Germany, officials said.

Pittsfield, Oct. 2—An explosion that was heard for a mile occurred at the Pittsfield Coal Gas Company plant. No one was injured in the blast.

BALM SUIT HITS MAINE WIDOW

Portland, Me., Oct. 2—A transcontinental trip figures in a $25,000 heart balm suit filed here today against Mrs. Helen Ward Smith, wealthy and attractive Portland widow. The suit was filed by Mrs. Altha Hall Snow, wife of a Swampon, Vt., auto dealer.

The alleged trip, the suit charges, started in Burlington, Vt., and went the breadth of the country taking in such cities as Chicago, El Paso, Tex., Oklahoma City and Los Angeles. Mrs. Smith and Snow, the suit charges, met about May 1, 1932, and "have been in each other's company since that time."

Mrs. Smith, the mother of two daughters and daughter of a wealthy hotel owner, lives in the Bowdoin apartments here and has a summer home at Cape Elizabeth. Her husband, Leon, former Portland broker, hanged himself three years ago, leaving Mrs. Smith a fortune.

"We ate on the way. We arrived in a place called Roxbury and asked for directions to Boston. I think we drove about four miles. We got to an elevated railway place on Harrison avenue and I inquired of somebody as to where I might find a Catholic school or hospital for children.

"I was directed to a place on Harrison street and then I afterward got to the church.

"We ate supper across the street from it and then I went into the church with the boy. I wrote a note and left it with him directed to the pastor. I then directed the child to walk up to a lady who was sitting in a [illegible] pew. I left the church and drove back to New York alone."

"To the Pastor: Please care for this child and I will be back later to take care of everything."

When the Rev. N. J. Cronin, rector of the cathedral, turned the boy over to police no mention was made of the note and if there was one it is believed to have been dropped on the floor by the boy before he was found.

Boston police went to the cathedral today [illegible] with Father Cronin and to inquire among attaches if a note was picked up and [illegible] not realized.

Long Hunt for Daddy Ends in Albany

Albany, N. Y., police have under arrest Frank E. Graves, an orchestra leader, who is alleged to have confessed abandoning his seven-year old son, Raymond, in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, Washington street, Boston. The child was picked up here by police. After vain efforts to identify him, he was turned over by the public welfare department to a philanthropic family willing to give him a home. Forget all the creaming when you make cakes with CRISCO

It wouldn't tire a child to make a cake with Crisco. Crisco is already creamed, you see, so naturally it's the perfect shortening for speedy cakes!

Here's how Crisco helps you save 5 minutes and a lot of hard arm-work—

First, put Crisco into the mixing bowl. Then pour in all the sugar. And if it's a whole-egg cake, break in the eggs, too.

Then beat heartily. It's easy because Crisco is the creamy, velvety shortening. In 3 minutes you'll get a fluffy, well-blended mixture. (It takes 8 minutes with a stiff hard shortening!) And you'll love the feathery cake that you'll get!

Crisco protects digestion, too

Crisco gives you crispy fried foods good to eat and good for you! Crisco pastry is light and flaky—digestible! Why? Because Crisco's secret process turns pure digestible oils into fluffy, digestible Crisco. And it stays digestible for months!

Crisco is not sold loose or in bulk

When you buy, look for the vacuum-sealed can with the familiar blue-and-white Crisco label. It's your health protection against dust and contamination. And it's the only way you can get genuine Crisco—the pure, wholesome fat that digests quickly. For Crisco is not sold loose or in bulk.

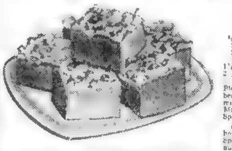
CHOCOLATE PEPPERMINT CAKE

The delicious cake exhibited at the Cooking School last week

½ cup Crisco
1 cup sugar
2 egg yolks
[illegible] squares unsweetened chocolate
1 [illegible] cups flour
[illegible] teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda
1 cups [illegible]
1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat Crisco, sugar, and egg yolks briskly. No creaming needed with Crisco, the creamy shortening! Add chocolate, melted. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with sour milk. Mix well. Add vanilla. Pour into square (7½ inch) or oblong cake pan, rubbed with Crisco. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 50 to 60 minutes. Cool.

Icing Frosting: Put 1½ cups granulated sugar, 2 unbeaten egg whites and ⅓ cup water to cook over boiling water. Beat 4 minutes with Dover beater. Add ½ teaspoon peppermint flavoring (or ¼ cup crushed after-dinner mints or pastes). Beat until thick. Remove from boiling water. Continue beating until frosting will spread. Cover top and sides of cake. Melt 2 squares unsweetened chocolate. Blend with 1 teaspoon Crisco. Pour over cake, letting chocolate run down sides.



TOASTED SPICE CAKE

½ cup Crisco
2 cups brown sugar, sifted
2 eggs (separated)
1 teaspoon soda
1¼ cups sour milk
2¼ cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon [illegible]
1 teaspoon [illegible]
¾ [illegible]
1 teaspoon [illegible]

Blend wholesome fluffy Crisco with sugar and egg yolks [illegible] beating. Crisco needs no preliminary "creaming." [illegible] milk. Add milk alternately with sifted dry ingredients. [illegible] Mix until smooth. Pour into a Criscoed and floured [illegible] pan. [illegible] Spread with—

Brown Sugar Meringue. Beat 2 egg whites left from cake [illegible] hold a point but are not dry [illegible] beat in [illegible] brown sugar. Spread meringue over raw cake batter. Sprinkle with [illegible] cup [illegible] nutmeats. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) [illegible] to 60 minutes.

All Measurements Level. Recipes tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. Crisco is the registered trade-mark of a shortening manufactured by the Procter & Gamble Co.

For heaven's sake, Sue—having a party?
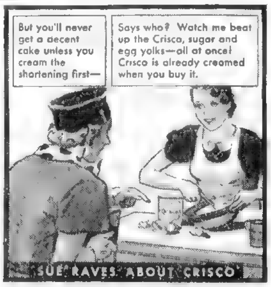
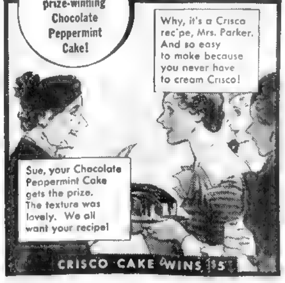
OUT TO GET $5



But you'll never get a decent cake unless you cream the shortening first—
Says who? Watch me beat up the Crisco, sugar and egg yolks—all at once! Crisco is already creamed when you buy it.
SUE RAVES ABOUT CRISCO

Recipe above for prize-winning Chocolate Peppermint Cake!



Why, it's a Crisco recipe, Mrs. Parker. And so easy to make because you never have to cream Crisco!
Sue, your Chocolate Peppermint Cake gets the prize. The texture was lovely. We all want your recipe!
CRISCO CAKE WINS $5

At the American Cooking School last week, Mrs. Frances Northcross used and recommended CRISCO, the modern, quick-digesting shortening

Junk No-Fix Law, Say Drivers

[illegible]

MARIE COLEMAN, [illegible]

"The No-Fix law is unfair. I am one of the thousands of shoppers who drive daily into downtown Boston. They don't stand a chance. The law should be changed immediately."

Helen Toomey   Marie Coleman

HELEN TOOMEY, [illegible]

"The old law was strict enough, but the present one is unbearable. Who ever allowed this law to pass? It is getting to be worse than Russia.

"There was a time when a person operating a machine could afford to pay 50 cents for parking, but those days are gone. Here's one little lady that will keep her car out of the city until the law is repealed."

ARTHUR BLACKMORE, [illegible]

"As proprietor of a downtown hardware store, I already have felt the scourge of the 'No Fix' law. A customer, fearing his car had been 'put on the spot,' asked me to see the police officer. I asked the officer if he were going to turn him in and he replied: 'Yeh. Just too bad. Al, these cars along here have been "tagged."'

Arthur Blackmore

"The customer wasn't in the store five minutes when this happened. How many of these customers are coming back to my store if this continues?"

SELMA SHEPARD, [illegible]

"I have been driving my own car for the past five years and have always managed to keep out of trouble, insofar as the parking laws are concerned. Surely everybody has worry enough these days without worrying about summonses from which there is no appeal."

Selma Shepard

FRANK WAUGH of Cleveland [illegible] Dorchester:

"Up to the present my car has been an asset to me in my business. It is really indispensable, but I am worried about the No Fix law. Who can tell but I may be the victim of not one but two and three summonses, from different officers. If I have to pay the fines, I might as well close up."

Frank Waugh

MADELYN WHITE of Dorch[illegible]:

"Putting teeth in the law is putting it mildly. Boston will look like a cow pasture in a short time. Nobody will drive a car into town. You don't know whether you are 'pinched' until you get the summons in the mails. I haven't got enough money to keep the car running as it is, and if they fine me now for parking, I'll sell my machine to the highest bidder."

FOLEY JOINS CELL DEATH PROBE

This Is Life
ROBERT E. ROGERS

I haven't seen "Ah, Wilderness" at time of writing, and unless time gets more flexible I do not know as I shall get to see it. That is why I envy business men. I never knew one who didn't give the impression that he had all the time in the world and could go anywhere he wanted to go and stay just as long as he liked. He probably has to take up his slack sometime, just as everybody else does. But at least he isn't always moving about at bell signals and going places to be there at exactly half-past two. In a word, he doesn't live in a world of inexorable fixed engagements, which waste time and hamstring productive activity more than anything else I know.

Robert E. Rogers

I have read the play, though—and with a sympathy and sense of warm recollection that almost no other play, and none of O'Neill's plays, has ever given me. The reason is that "Ah, Wilderness" is about a boy of sixteen and laid in the year in which I was just about passed that age. I forget whether I am a year older or younger than O'Neill, but that doesn't matter. The point is that he has recreated our youth for those of us who are about midway between forty and fifty.

O'Neill's young hero, living with his family in a small Connecticut city, had just arrived at the point where he was crazy about reading the new and the radical stuff. In 1906 this meant Shaw and Wells and the like. It meant Omar Khayyam, not exactly new but fairly daring for youth in high schools. Swinburne belonged also. There were probably others. Anyway, such heady reading went to the lad's head and made him want to experience Life with a capital L.

It w[illegible] first Shaw play, Arnold Daly's pioneering performance of [illegible] and "The Man of Destiny," which started the Shaw craze in the United States. I saw it from the steep box in the rear of the second balcony in the [illegible] Park Theater, where now the Minsky's strip [illegible]. Twenty-five cents [illegible] first play and [illegible] splendid taste of [illegible].

[illegible] Dorothy Donnelly, Dodson Mitchell, Herbert Standing, [illegible] Ernest Lawford and Louise Closser Hale. Most of them are [illegible] in the part of [illegible] Marchbanks. He was short and slender with [illegible] hair and he wore a black Beaux Arts tie. He spoke in a [illegible] nervous [illegible].

I know I practiced his stance and his [illegible] that spring and tormented my long suffering mother to let me wear a floppy black bow tie as near like the authentic Beaux Arts as possible. I must have been a singularly amusing spectacle and trying to my parents, to say nothing of my [illegible] and passionate predilection for Shaw and his [illegible] ideas.

Well, that was O'Neill's hero to a certain extent. He too spouted Shaw to his amazed family. I take it that O'Neill at the same age fell under the same spell except that he must have progressed to "Mrs. Warren's Profession" and decided to experiment at the [illegible] house down by the beach where the shop girls and the drummers hung out. I suggest that because the whole thing seems to me [illegible] from autobiography so far as the boy is concerned, that is, and because as I realized when I came to know O'Neill later he was probably a [illegible] and [illegible] person than I.

Anyway it took only ten years for the boy that gets the talking to from George Cohan in the last act to become a tall, lean, sinewy playwriting rebel, bronzed by the sun to a deep brown, still haggard from his hard experiences in the fo'c'sle, on the beach, in hospital, G[illegible] knows where, with already a volume of plays behind him, each extant copy of which now must be worth its weight in gold. He's [illegible] as many as he could.

What would have happened to him had he chosen the commercial Broadway route to the theater is impossible to guess. But he fell in with a bunch of radical artists, with keen ears and eyes for something new and interesting and if possible unconventional. And so on the shoulders of the amateurs of the Provincetown Players he came up to Broadway and could condescend to the Theater Guild.

He has a good memory, these days. Even the dialogue of "Ah, Wilderness" gives one a nostalgia for 1906. The words and turns of speech and phrase are not of our day but of that older simpler day, when Shaw was in his impudent prime, and Taft was [illegible] our sang and Theodore T. was lambasting malefactors of great wealth, and Europe was ostensibly at peace.

Everybody in the early or late forties will get a kind of kick out of "Ah, Wilderness" that no one else can possibly appreciate.

Catino Jury Visits Scene Of Spinster's Slaying

In the old, crumbling house where Miss Alice G. Porter, former Medford school teacher, made her home for years, the Samuel J. Catino murder jury today went over the scene where the state claims Catino administered poison to the woman.

The jurors were taken to the home at 149 Allston street, West Medford, after hearing opening addresses of Assistant District Attorney Paul R. Foley and Attorney William R. Scharton, the defense lawyer.

Foley charged that Catino, the handyman at the Porter home for 12 years, deliberately planned to murder Miss Porter with arsenic so he could get at the money she had left him in her will.

The poison, he said, was administered to the middle aged spinster in a midnight snack prepared by Catino for Miss Porter.

Foley said that Catino found Miss Porter lying dead in her bed at 8:15 a. m. February 20, the day of the heaviest snow in Boston for years.

"Despite the snow," Foley said, "Catino walkked more than three miles to his home on Sanger street, Medford, told his family what had happened and then returned with them at noon before notifying police."

CALLS FOR ALL STATEMENTS MADE BY POLICE IN CASE

Seeking to fix police blame in the death of John J. Madden, 37, of Station street, Roxbury, who died from injuries suffered in a cell at Roxbury Crossing station, police officials conferred today with District Attorney Foley.

At the conference were Deputy Superintendent William [illegible] and Captain James F. [illegible] of the Bureau of Cases and Thomas F. Casey of the division station.

At the meeting Foley requested that transcripts of police statements on the case be brought to his office.

Meanwhile Police Commissioner Hultman would make no comment on the case but it is known that thus far police have been unable to pick out the man believed to have punched Madden in the face.

Madden, arrested for drunkenness on the night of April 1, died the following day at City Hospital from a fractured skull and "essential injuries" to the brain. His face was badly battered.

Finding of Judge Abraham K. Cohen in municipal court that Madden's death was "caused by the unlawful act of a person unknown" put the matter squarely up to Roxbury Crossing police today. A report on the case already submitted by police was discarded and a new one demanded.

JOHN J. MADDEN

BALK "WHITEWASH"

The original report, [illegible] was brought out in court, had no hint that there was physical force used on the prisoner or that blows he received at the police station were the direct cause of his death.

But the results of the inquest, together with Judge Cohen's findings, were in the hands of the district attorney. Counsel for the Madden family declared that they would battle to a finish any attempt to "whitewash" the probe.

Attorney James H. Flanagan declared:

"I'm waiting to see if the police can solve this occurrence. If they can't, I'll instigate criminal proceedings.

"Murder? Well, we are thinking of asking for such a complaint if the police fail to find who punched Madden in the face.

"But at any rate, we have proved that it was a punch that caused Madden to fall and strike his head. That is sufficient for the time being, but only for the time being. There's a lot more to this case than appears on the surface.

DR. LEARY'S OPINION

Judge Cohen, as he says in his finding, was unable to say who did the striking, but I intend to find out."

Testifying at the inquest, Medical Examiner Timothy Leary, who performed an autopsy on Madden, stated that death was caused by a fractured skull and concussion of the brain. Dr. Leary's testimony states:

"The indications were that this man received a blow of some sort that was responsible for the hemorrhages in the eyelids and the brain. Then, in addition to that, he fell back and probably struck the floor and received his extensive injuries to the skull on the left side.

"That lead to the throwing of the brain against the skull. The brain landed hard against the skull on the other side, so that his essential injuries to the brain were on the right side, a blow on the front more to the left than to the right."

MORE THAN FALL

Q. (By Judge Cohen)—That takes him off his balance and throws him back? A—Yes.

Q—That condition you have just described would be consistent with a heavy striking by a fist against the right part of the face — about the eyes and nose? A—Yes.

Q—Causing a loss of balance and a toppling over and hitting the back of the head on the floor? A—It was more than a toppling. Mere toppling from an erect position would not produce as extensive a fracture of the skull as this man had. It is a forceful driving of the body out of the standing position. Toppling won't account for it.

Dr. Leary further testified that such a blow would produce a condition which would be visible to the ordinary person almost immediately. He also said that it was impossible for Madden to have received such injuries from falling off the bench in the cell. He declared:

BLOW CAUSED HURTS

"My experience is, with the combination of an injury on the front and back, with a fractured skull, that the cause was a blow in the face throwing the individual backwards with a good deal of force.

"My opinion is that the facial injuries are caused by such a blow."

Patrolman Thomas F. Donahue [illegible] wagon when Madden was arrested at 7 a. m. April [illegible] there were no marks on Madden's face when he was placed in the wagon [illegible] when he was booked.

Patrolman Donahue said he placed Madden in Cell No. 4 and went upstairs, never seeing Madden again.

Patrolman Robert L. Spredby, on duty in the cell [illegible] at the time Madden was brought in, told Judge Cohen that Donahue started upstairs and then came back. Spredby said the inmate of Cell 4 objected to being in the same cell with Madden in his drunken condition and Spredby moved the man to Cell [illegible]

INSPECTED PRISONER

Patrolman Donahue and Spredby went to Cell 4 and looked at Madden, who was groaning, but Donahue said he was all right, Patrolman Spredby testified.

Testimony of Patrolman Samuel A. Lawson, who was on the back of the wagon on April 2, said it was his sole duty to [illegible] the pickets every half hour.

For several years I have been watching the operation of that bird, fish and puppy dog store along Sixth avenue in the 40s. Japanese owned and managed, it began by acquiring a little space from another establishment as the depression struck. Today it occupies the entire corner and another storeroom around the corner. It looks always busy and windows are newly decorated daily. To expand and prosper during a world-wide depression in a business that merchandises absolute non-essentials strikes me as something for the book.

Then the soft drink igloos that sprout in the Broadway crevices. Rents are not so high as they were there, but even now most must take in several hundred dollars a week to make expenses. To appearances they are run by callow youths in white duck. If they are interested in trade they do not show it. Yet despite this indifference in selling a non-essential, not many have shuttered during the depression. It's all very strange.

Few go below Fulton street after nightfall, I suppose. Mostly the Wall and Broad street section is deserted, marvelously eerie, like a prehistoric forest of stone. Only steam geysering from street manholes and the occasional night watchman offer activity. Vast cliffs which are buildings go up in the darkness, tall, incalculable, and between lie canyons of blackness. In thousands of offices sheets cover millions of typewriters. Desks, chairs and all the mechanics of livelihood stand as if sudden death had come upon their owners. When the prince entertained the palace of the Sleeping Beauty he likely met the same suspended animation. A sawfaced man peeping from a fretful scurry of clouds pours a lineage of pale radiance through many windows. Silence, silent! Not even the ghost of a silent partner. As silent as the brooding and eerie Trinity graveyard at the head of Wall.

And in the dead of night along South and Water streets the city's vast army of cats comes into its own. In the darkness of warehouses and under dock ends they sit waiting. Till dawn, almost, they own the area. Everywhere it is dark, their eyes, like eyes of witches, glitter. Out of the night, down countless centuries comes the call—the old jungle call, and the little tigers arouse, stretch their legs, lick their lips, unsheath their claws, arch their backs and set out on adventures. The great jungle of the waterfront swallows them as the forest [illegible] swallowed them ages and ages ago.

Then the morning strolles that the tambourine-capped [illegible] from big midtown hotels parade along Park and Fifth avenues—every variety from the bug-eyed, Mexican hairless to the magnificent Borzoi. These are well-mannered city dogs—canine Clarences—that actually acquire highhat. Their back hair does not bristle at a fellow dog's approach. Instead there's studious avoidance.

A dowager type at a dinner last night sniffed that a New York column was only interesting because of names of the great. So-oo-o—I've tried on a workout today without a single name great or ungreat. Looking it over, I fear the Countess Snatzess was 100 percent correct. (Voice: The snapper's fishing.)

Asking Consent of Her Parents

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

[illegible] to be socially correct, to ask the permission and consent of [illegible] proposal of marriage? If so, when should this be done—before or after the proposal is made to the young lady? READER.

The rule of kindness and consideration for others is still the basis of manners, of "good form." There never was a better definition [illegible] "The kindest thing in the kindest way."

[illegible] this, the parents who have been [illegible] he wishes to marry. He always an entire lack not only of manners, [illegible] and ap[illegible] make this bow of courtesy and friendliness to her mother and father. And if he has any sensitiveness to other people, he wouldn't even consider omitting this fundamental courtesy.

Age and Youth Are Quickly Parted

By Sheilah Graham

THE AVERAGE man's sense of humor refuses to work when the joke is on him. That is why a young man should never marry a woman more than ten years—at the most—his senior. It has never worked out, and it never w[illegible]

Take the case of middle-aged Madeleine Force Astor Dick Fiermonte. I feel sorry for her.

I happen to know a little of the inside story of this December female and May male match. There was Madeleine with a lot of time and money on her hands and with few opportunities of spending either.

ENZO, THE ADONIS

Then into her bored vision strode Enzo, the adonis—young, strong and oh, so fascinating.

They married. Mrs. Fiermonte genuinely in love with her youthful Italian husband. Enzo, genuinely fond of the woman he thought was doing so much for him by adding his name to her two others.

Enzo has stated it was his career that split his marriage. That was only a small half of the reason. The other half is the old, old story of a young man who was loved by a lady nearly old enough to be his mother, but who wanted to run around with boys and girls of his own age.

Why do elderly ladies marry young men? There are two or three obvious reasons. A desire for admiration—they want a young man's reassurance that they are not too old or too unattractive—

Loneliness—they think the company of a young man will dispel the [illegible] of being alone. It doesn't on account of he is [illegible]

A craving for affection, they will be [illegible] that the bought variety isn't worth a nickel of the money they pay.

After the first flush of politeness had worn off her days and nights would have been a nightmare of wondering "Where and with whom is he wandering tonight?"

Elderly ladies, why not be wise to yourselves?

EASY TO USE

This preparation I have in mind [illegible] a brilliantine [illegible] and an entire [illegible] one. You apply it following a shampoo and almost [illegible] the lost sheen is recaptured. It [illegible] harmless and [illegible] is the kind of [illegible] you've dreamed of having on your dressing table [illegible] setting your hair back in shape.

For truly black hair there is another preparation—a French bluing—that will make the hair resemble a modern [illegible] black [illegible] It brings back that much-to-be-desired bluish lustre that [illegible] have gone so daft over in song and story.

To learn the names of the preparation for brown hair and the French bluing for black [illegible] phone Juliet Shelby, LIBerty 4000. If you prefer writing for information, send a stamped self-addressed envelope along with your inquiry to Miss Shelby, Boston Evening American, Boston.

Blue-Black Finish Lends Glamour

Posed by Kay Francis

IF YOU ARE a brunette, a new high in elegance awaits you the first time an application of a new lotion goes on your hair. It imparts that much-to-be-desired blue-ish lustre seen so frequently on smart Continental women. It is for brown and black haired beauties only, and gives the same glorious lustre that Kay Francis has

Drawn Feeling to Dry Skin

Question: After washing my face I am always afflicted by a tight drawn feeling. I have been using a cream, but the condition still persists. What do you advise? F. W., Boston.

Answer: Soap and water frequently is followed by a drawn feeling. A soap [illegible] the skin [illegible] dry skin conditions [illegible] is often better [illegible] occasional soap and water [illegible] ing at bedtime, using cleansing cream other nights. Or, you might try removing makeup with cream, then follow with soap and water. Then smooth on a little more cream.

Cure for Bunions

Question: I suffer terribly from bunions. Is there any way I can cure them? Would an operation for their removal be advisable? A. F., Danvers.

Answer: Bunions are unpleasant, unsightly and often acutely painful, but they can be helped and often cured. There are various "feet comforts" on the market [illegible] bunions.

I suggest that you see a good chiropodist [illegible] vice. He will be [illegible] and tell you whether or not an operation is necessary or advisable.

Hair Needs Rinsing

Question: No matter how many times I rinse my hair after washing, there remains a white, soapy residue. Do you recommend any specific rinse that will not change the color of the hair? Recently I have lost much weight. Can you suggest something that will erase the ensuing lines in my face?—A. L. C., Boston.

Answer: The reason your hair is sticky is because you do not get all the soap out [illegible] ing it. Rinse it in warm water until you can hear it "squeak." That is a sure sign that you have gotten the soap out. There are many vegetable rinses on the market that will not change the color of your hair.

It is quite natural for your face to show a few wrinkles [illegible] you have lost such a lot of weight. After cleansing your face with cold cream, use a skin [illegible] lotion, then apply [illegible] cream. Leave the [illegible] cream on overnight [illegible] your eyes where the wrinkles are beginning to form. This will nourish the skin and help smooth away the wrinkles.

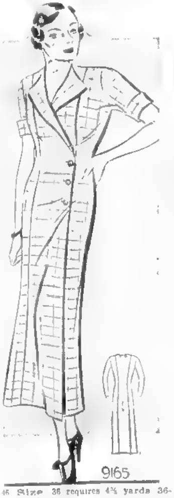
Streamline Coat-Frock

By MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9165

Are you one of the thousands of women who have been [illegible] themselves—"What is this streamline silhouette?" Say it no more. Here is the answer to your question. A better example of that much discussed fashion you could [illegible] The [illegible] goes on like a coat in almost a split second of time—which has its advantage for the busy housewife—and it may be ironed flat.

Pattern 9165 may be ordered only in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 4⅜ yards 36-inch fabric.



Send 15 cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern.

Little Opportunity of Eliminating Guessing

[illegible] of good bridge players and good scientists may be summarized in two words—"eliminate guessing." If enough bridge players [illegible] their goal [illegible] And if [illegible] succeed [illegible] may cease to be interesting. But [illegible] there is no immediate [illegible] of either bridge players or scientists [illegible] bridge experts, in fact [illegible]

[illegible] club contract, [illegible] bidding. West quite naturally opened the heart King. Dummy followed [illegible] seven-spot as a come-on signal. West continued with the heart Queen. Dummy again followed, and [illegible] I regret to report, complacently completed his high-low by playing the heart 3. Poor West, of course, was now left high and dry and had to shift to another suit. South was able to discard his third losing heart on Dummy's Ace of spades, and fulfilled his contract.

Of course, it is easily seen that East should have overtaken the heart King with the Ace, and after it held the trick, should have returned the third round of the suit, giving his partner a ruff to defeat the contract. In my opinion, East's failure to do so was definitely a bad play and not a bad guess.

From the bidding the Declarer was almost definitely marked with [illegible] with the cards of the other two suits divided either 2-1 or 3-0. South would automatically have gone to three notrump over two notrump rather than show a four-card club suit at this point, unless he intended to try subsequently for a Slam. Since he did not try for the Slam, he was marked with only three cards in the major suit.

The Declarer was marked after the lead of the heart Queen to trick 2 with [illegible] holding of at least two hearts. If the Declarer had held only a singleton heart, West would not have continued with the heart Queen at Trick 2, but with a low heart—his fourth best. Thus to overtake the heart Queen with the Ace not only [illegible] trick, since the Declarer [illegible] low, but could not lose anything by setting up the Jack in Dummy. Since South was marked with two hearts [illegible] Jack would [illegible] the Ace [illegible] West would have done [illegible] the contract [illegible] defeated.

FEMININE HYGIENE made easy

Fastidious women have long sought an easier, more modern, safer way to inner cleanliness than that offered by the use of odorous, and sometimes dangerous, chemicals. Norforms meet this need ideally, and have become widely used as the simplified, new way to feminine hygiene.

Norforms are easy-to-use antiseptic suppositories—completely ready for use. They require no awkward apparatus for application. There is no danger of an overdose or burn. And they contain Parahydrecin, a powerful new antiseptic that kills germs yet is harmless to tissue. Norforms are safe.

By Betty Alden

WE SEEM TO BE ENTIRELY surrounded by Romance this morning . . . it is morning as we [illegible] these few lines . . . Mr. and Mrs. Alexander White Moffat of Fisher road, Brookline, are announcing the engagement of Little Miss Moffat (Miss Marian to you and one of the prettiest lemon-haired debutantes who stepped into the social spotlight last season) to Mr. Thomas Dunwoody Welch, son of Mrs. Thomas Albert Welch of Prescott road, Lynn.

MARIAN MOFFAT

Miss Moffat attended Miss Winsor's School for Girls and Westover School and is a member of the Vincent Club and of the Junior League . . .

Mr. Welch is a graduate of Phillips Academy at Andover and was a member of the 1935 class at Harvard. He is a member of the Hasty Pudding-Institute 1770 Clubs. No wedding plans have been announced.

Cohan Ably Presides

IT SEEMED HARD FOR US to believe that Mr. George M. Cohan did not write Ah, Wilderness! . . . he might very easily had done so. It is the kind of play he has been writing . . . of course he would have named it Puppies and Parents, but haven't his plays been that odd combination of shyness and frankness, of amusement blended with tenderness?

Perhaps it is because of the pervasive character of Mr. Cohan that we completely forget Mr. Eugene O'Neill . . . we have an idea the author did not intend that the character of Nat Miller should dominate his play, but from the moment that Mr. Cohan appears on the stage (and the audience gives him an ovation that lasts several minutes) he presides over the scenes in his homely, out-moded manner.

Every character in the piece is delightful and splendidly acted . . . they bring back precious incidents long since forgotten . . . someone suggested that the moonlight scene on the beach be cut out to shorten the piece—to us that was one of the most poignant, touching bits in the play . . . the old Gloucester hammock days. May we suggest that those who suffer from social ennui seek Ah, Wilderness' for diversion . . . The Spirit of Eternal Youth still has the power to give the old folks the twitters . . .

We had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Cohan after the performance . . . there are moments when this uppety-upping has its compensations, and this was one. We found him entirely lacking in vanity, and it was a cruel moment to greet a matinee idol . . . he was wearing a ghostly garment with the nonchalance of a Chinaman. Needless to say, the interview was all too short . . . he is such a simple American, one is obliged to talk intelligently to him. He is a person of great charm and we hope to have the honor of seeing him again, both on and off the stage . . . All of the smart set whom we mentioned last evening were in their accustomed chairs . . . the applause was tremendous . . . Enough! Enow! Not quite . . . Mrs. Cohan was in the audience looking very lovely in shimmering white satin worn with a handsome silver fox cape . . . still the lovely bride!

Smart Set Entertained on Ship

FLITTING ABOUT . . . we caught a glimpse of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, Jr. (Betty Stockton), on H. M. S. Dragon drinking the health of His Majesty's handsome officers . . .

Lorna Livermore, who by the way must have a collection of uniforms to her credit, showing a handsome naval officer how American girls behave at a tea party . . .

Mrs. Hamilton Osgood in leaf green wool suit very much at home among her countrymen . . . she has returned from a visit with her parents, Honorable and Mrs. Grey in England . . .

Dorothy West completely surrounded by brass buttons having a gay time dancing on the AFT deck . . . her Alpine hat with jaunty feather was very natty.

At Margaret Hallowell's Party

HEARING YARNS ABOUT MARGARET HALLOWELL'S dance on Saturday night which lasted into the rosy dawn . . . that Priscilla Saltonstall was adorable in navy blue velvet and Isabella Gardner beautiful in bright blue of the same becoming material . . .

That Daphne Brooks, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gorham Brooks, is a lovely brunette, although she looks blonde in her pictures . . .

That Isabella Lawrence wore white silk to the Hallowell dance, which by the way was scheduled as a tea . . .

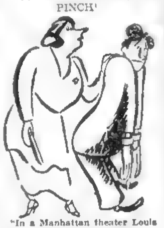
A POLICEWOMAN'S PINCH IS A VERY VICIOUS PINCH'



"In a Manhattan theater Louis Moni could not resist the temptation to pinch a shapely leg beside him. For molesting a policewoman the owner of the leg arrested and jailed Louis Moni." —News item.

When a woman dons a star for her employment,
And swears to do her duty, do or die,
Her capacity for innocent enjoyment
Must be curbed, alas, alack, oh, me! oh, my!
Advances she must diligently smother
When constabulary duty's to be done

CHORUS
Oh take one consideration with another
A police dame's lot is not a happy one
When constabulary duty's to be done
A police dame's lot is not a happy one happy one'

When into a movie theater she ankles,
And sits her down next to some lonely rake,
Indignant she must be, although it rankles,
The moment that he makes his first mistake.
He may be someone's father, son or brother!
If pinch she must, she'll pinch—but not in fun

CHORUS
Oh take one consideration with another

JOE MEDWICK PEPPER MARTIN FRANKIE FRISCH PAUL DEAN JEROME H. DEAN

Here is the hitting and the pitching strength St. Louis counts on to provide the momentum which will continue to carry the Cards past their National League triumph to even greater glory in the world series. "Ducky Wucky" Medwick is the leading clouter on the club and one of the most dangerous hitters in the league, apt to bust up any ball game at any time. Martin and Frisch are another pair of dangerous clubbers. And as for Daffy and Dizzy Dean—well, they won more than half of the Cardinal triumphs this season. This powerful hand, with Dizzy playing the role of "Joker," is one that Mickey Cochrane must trump if his Bengals are to triumph.

The Pennant Miracle, Or the Embarrassment Of Breadon's Riches ↕ Cardinals' Owner Prays for 7-Game Series With Tigers

By AUSTEN LAKE

Austen Lake

Detroit, Oct. 2—UNABLE TO DECIDE on such short notice whether the descent of the World's Series in his ball yard is a blessing or a disaster in disguise, President Sam Breadon of the St. Louis Cardinals is ordering the hasty building of several thousand extra seats.

Mr. Breadon is accustomed to take the pessimistic view of things, and he knows that his boys, particularly the Deans, Dizzy and Daffy, will be asking enormous boosts in pay next year on the theory that it was they and they alone who delivered the [illegible] at Breadon's door.

Sam is wondering whether in the end it would not have been cheaper to have just chivvied the Giants a bit without carrying things to the extreme of snatching the golden bauble from their palsied hands.

He finds now that the Deans, who repaid his bad temper by kindness last month when he assessed them some $1000 between them for mutiny and destruction of club property, are apt to be a liability in the coming series, inasmuch as they may wipe out the sequence in four straight games.

And that, as everybody knows, would mean the loss of many gorgeous dollars to the rival proprietors, because the owners do not begin to cut into the series cake until the fifth game.

Mr. Breadon keynoted his hopes when he said, 'I trust the series will go the full seven games."

IN SAYING THIS MR. BREADON implied that he prayed his Cardinals would be diplomatic enough to lose half of the first six games, so that he could get back a reasonable part of his losses during the season.

In this he differs from the true amateur spirit of Colonel Jake Ruppert, the brewer who owns the Yankees, and the late William Wrigley, the chewing gum king who owned the Cubs.

Both men, in their different times, had said that they would gladly swallow deficits if their teams would smother the opposition without drawing an extra breath.

And the Colonel, on three occasions at least, suffered in his bankroll what he gained in spiritual uplift by seeing his hired men win four straight.

He did not need the money anyway, being literally drowned in riches, and he looked on the Yankees as a $5,000,000 toy, somewhat as the millionaire yachtsmen regarded their racing sloops in the late America's Cup travesty.

BUT MR. BREADON DOES NOT CARRY altruism to extremes. The auto business, which is his main line of work, has not been flush lately. And the burghers of St. Louis are stubborn folk who sometimes get sulky for no reason at all, and refuse to patronize his park even when the team is running front.

Cash money is very vital to Sam—though even his intimates never dare to call him less than Mr. Breadon to his face.

And he was thinking last month how nice it would be if another Tom Yawkey or a Paul Crosley would lift the load from his back and take over the Cardinal property. But nobody came along and he was forced to keep on bleeding painful dollars through his pores.

THE PENNANT MIRACLE is embarrassing in another way to Mr. Breadon. It compromises him with Frankie Frisch, his manager, whom he was privately planning to drop down the laundry chute next winter to save the $25,000 he is paying him in salary, knowing that he could realize a fairish sum for Frankie's playing talent, which will be getting no more valuable year by year, and knowing that he can pick up a bargain manager among his junior troupers.

Mr. Breadon is very sudden this way, and when a manager

DETROIT WILL WIN IN WALK, RUNYON

By Damon Runyon

(Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service)

New York, Oct. 2—Many crocodile tears are being shed over the sad fate of the New York Giants in some quarters.

They are entitled to no sympathy.

They had a seven-game lead going into September, and blew it.

Unless half the club had dropped [illegible] can be no alibi for tossing off that kind of a jump.

Moreover, when the St. Louis Cardinals laid up alongside them and looked them in the eyes, the Giants failed to respond with the spirit you expect of a champion of the world.

So while others are weeping for the Giants, [illegible] a corner and cheer gently for the good, game Cardinals who came from behind.

They will give Mickey Cochrane's Detroit Tigers ten times as much trouble as the Giants. But they won't win.

The Tigers will beat the Cardinals in the world series, Deans or no Deans. It will be a tough fight, and may go seven games. It will be a battle of the pitchers all the way through.

The Tigers and the Cards may not be the greatest clubs ever in a series, but you may take it from this writer that they are two of the very gamest, and it ought to be a grand muss.

Toss-Up, Says Landis

By Associated Press

Detroit, Oct. 2—A World Series "bitterly fought and full of color" was predicted today by Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball.

"I'm no prophet," said the commissioner replaying to a question about how the series would end. "I can't predict a winner and I wouldn't be a bit surprised either way. But there is one thing I will say. There hasn't been a World Series in years where both battle front presented so many colorful players. In recent years one or two players have overshadowed all the others because of their superior playing and their personalities.

"This year we have a whole gallery of superior players and a whole gallery of personalities. This series should be bitterly fought and full of color, and may the best team win."

Five teams will compete in the first roller skating race to be held at the Lynn Sports Arena on Friday evening. This will be a two hour affair with mile sprints every 20 minutes.

New Haven, Oct. 2—Yale's athletic association indicated today that a crowd of 50,000 would attend the game with Columbia here Saturday.

Cochrane to Lead With Crowder if 'Diz' Starts

If any other pitcher but Dizzy starts, then Cochrane will start Rowe, he stated.

"If the Cards start Dizzy, then it will definitely be Crowder," Mickey said this morning as he sent his players through a batting and fielding drill at Navin Field.

Frankie Frisch, who arrived with his Cardinals this morning after an overnight hop from St. Louis, was non-committal about this starter.

FRENZIED ATMOSPHERE

While many expect that the Cardinal manager would lead with his ace, [illegible] Dizzy, there were many of the so-called better mind of baseball here who thought Frisch would be justified and wise in sending either Bill Hallahan, a tried veteran left-hander, or Tex Carelton at the Bengals in the opener.

Conjecture over the probable hurlers vied in this baseball frenzied city with the speculation over the winners of the series. It has been 25 years [illegible] out here and the boys are celebrating as if they didn't expect another swallow for twice as long.

The first taste of World Series nacta in a quarter of a century has set the motor metropolis off on a spree that for stark madness is unprecedented in baseball annals.

The hilarity high up to now belonged to Washington of 1924 and St. Louis of [illegible]. Where those celebrations left off, Detroit's started.

The merry Michiganders ignored the custom of waiting until their favorites cinched the flag. They began to go daffy in mid summer.

It seemed they must calm down before now. On the contrary, they've grown progressively wilder and the prospect of seeing Crowder pitted against the mighty "Dizzy" Dean in the opening clash between the Tigers and Cardinals, tomorrow, has tourned them into so many raving baseball maniacs.

COCHRANE THE HERO

They never heard of Hauptmann out here. He's not a ball player.

The diamond fever is so bad that Henry Ford, who made the town famous, had to cough up $100,000 to buy the series radio rights in order to have his name mentioned among the millions who are worshipping at the shrine of this Cochrane fellow, a son of Bridgewater, Mass., who gained his first athletic laurels at Boston University.

Ford and the other motor magnates merely supply the bread and butter for a large percentage of the population. Cochrane brought the American League pennant to Detroit for the first time since [illegible] and to the midwest for the first time since 1920.

Tiger officials have turned grey overnight trying to fill the demand for tickets for the games tomorrow and Thursday.

Bringing wooden bleachers from the Benton Harbor fight arena and erecting them in left field to increase the capacity of Navin Field from 32,000 to 46,000 hasn't come close to settling the housing problem.

LACK OF SEATS

If twice as many seats were available, there still wouldn't be room enough for all who want to be present when the series opens.

This is the Tigers' fourth flag. They won three in a row back in 1907-08-09.

But the great Ty Cobb, Wah-hoo Sam Crawford, Donie Bush, George Moriarty and the rest of the stars then at the command of the colorful Hughie Jennings of beloved memory failed to win the world title in three tries.

Gordon "Mickey" Cochrane with his "Schoolboy" Rowe, Tommy Bridges, Charlie Gehringer, "Hank" Greenburg et cetera will succeed where the Tigertown favorites of yesteryear failed.

That is, they will if you take local fandom's word for it. Or if you are influenced by the odds which favor the American Leaguers, 7 to 5.

The unexpected rush of the Cardinals to overcome the Giants has caused some apprehension among Detroit rooters.

They admit it promises to be tougher to whip those Deans than anybody Bill Terry could have trotted out in the series. But they still insist their Tigers can beat any team that ever existed.

Cochrane and his boys feel the same way about it.

The Cards are almost too stunned to speak after their amazing flag surge, but they'll find voice if you question their ability to carry on to victory over the T[illegible].

Their speech consists mainly of pointing to those two tall, dark, if not handsome, Texans, Jerome "Dizzy" and Paul "Daffy" Dean.

Manager Frankie Frisch intends to let others of his hurlers share in the series glory, but it will be Brothers Dean who will win the championship if it goes to St. Louis.

They turned in 49 victories to give the Cards the pennant. They must turn in four more if the most coveted of diamond crowns is to remain in the National League.

Outside of the box, the teams appear to be very evenly matched. The Cards rate the edge in the all-important mound department because of "Dizzy" and "Daffy."

Cochrane announces that Rowe, Bridges and Crowder will do all the Detroit starting. There's no "Dizzy" Dean in that trio, and only Rowe can compare with the younger "Daffy."

CASHMAN PICKS CARDS

It may not mean anything, but none of the Tiger aces has been at his best in recent games. Rowe worked an inning Sunday and was found for two runs.

Two days before he yielded eight markers in four frames. Bridges was pounded for nine runs in a stanza late last week. Crowder was very mediocre on Sunday last.

Your envoy would like to see "Mickey" Cochrane, a boy from home and as fine a fellow as you would want to meet, win the title. He'd hate, too, to have Detroit fans experience a terrible hangover after their delightful spree.

MISS HUNTER WINS IN TITLE GOLF PLAY

By Associated Press

Philadelphia, Penn., Oct. 2—Turning what was expected to be a close match into a rout, Charlotte Glutting, New Jersey champion and American Internationalist, trounced Margaret Maddox of Atlanta, former Southern champion, by 7 and 5 today in the first round of match play in the Women's National Golf championship.

Two Boston women were defeated in the first round. Mrs. Henri Prunaret lost to Mrs. Leona Cheney, San Gabriel, Calif., 7 and 5, and Mrs. William Ferris, Jr., lost to Mrs. Mark McGarry, Pasadena, Fla., 6 and 3.

But Dorothy Hunter, also of Boston, advanced to the second round of play at the expense of Edith [illegible] 2 and 1. The Massachusetts representative played consistent golf in winning over Miss Begg.

Miss Glutting covered the first nine holes in 40, four over men's par, to stand five up at the turn, and she shot the first four holes on the incoming side in regulation figures, to close out against her Southern opponent on the 13th green.

In the first international match of importance, Maureen Orcutt of Englewood, N. J., defeated Ada MacKenzie of Toronto 4 up and 2 to play. The golf displayed by the former Canadian champion was lukewarm, Miss Orcutt requiring 45 to the turn to 46 for the Canadian.

Lop-sided margins of victory were the order of the day.

Another Boston player, Ruth Batchelder, was eliminated by Mrs. H. F. [illegible] in Philadelphia, [illegible].

The meeting between Doris Chambers, non-playing captain of the British Curtis Cup team, and her No. 1 player, Diana Fishwick, resulted in a two up victory for Miss Fishwick, who shot the last five holes in par for an incoming 39, three over par. Miss Chambers was out in 43 and led by one hole at the turn.

Glenna Collett Vare, five times former champion and playing in the tournament for the first time since 1932, overcame the stubborn and steady opposition of Mrs. Charles Newhold of Wichita, Kan., to advance to the second round by a count of 2 and 1.

Mrs. Mark McGarry, Pasadena, Fla., defeated Mrs. William Ferris, Jr., Boston, Mass., 6 and 5.

Mrs. William G. Hamilton, Jr., Philadelphia, defeated Mrs. George Viebrock, New York, one up.

Marion Miley, Lexington, Ky., defeated Mrs. Thomas O'Reilly, New York, [illegible].

Mrs. Marion Turpie Lake, New York, defeated Betty Fleisch, Portchester, N. Y., 6 and 5.

Mrs. Carl H. Donner, Short Hills, N. J., defeated Lily Harper, Portsmouth, Va., [illegible].

CARDS ARRIVE IN DETROIT

By Associated Press

Detroit, Oct. 2—Frankie Frisch, the Fordham flash, led his high-flying St. Louis Cardinals—including the Dean brothers—into Detroit today and planned to send the National League Champions through a brief drill this afternoon preparatory to the World Series opening Wednesday.

The St. Louis squad, composed of 21 eligible players and accompanied by a delegation of fans, arrived at 8:05 a. m. (Eastern Standard [illegible] ing in his eighth World Series tomorrow, lost no time in hustling his team off the train and into cars which whisked the players to their hotel.

The Cardinals were in high spirits, evidently confident that they will continue the winning ways which gave them the National League flag in a "Garrison finish." Frisch indicated the drill at Navin field this afternoon would not be lengthy but would serve to unlimber his athletes after the night train ride.

The Cardinal players piled off four or five coaches. Some of them jumped immediately into taxicabs for the short ride to the hotel, while others left more leisurely.

Klem and Reardon Heydler Choices

Bill Klem and Beans Reardon will do the umpiring in the World Series for the National League.

It will be Klem's 17th post-season classic.

Yanks Cut Melon

New York, Oct. 2—The Yankees divided their World Series melon before they received it.

It is expected that a full share will amount to $800.

All the players and Manager Joe McCarthy will get full shares.

Cards Favorites in New York Betting

New York, Oct. 2 (INS)—The St. Louis Cardinals are still the favorites to win the World's Series, according to odds quoted along Broadway today.

Jack Doyle, famous betting commissioner, quoted 3 to 5 against the National Leaguers and 6 to 5 against their American League rivals, the Detroit Tigers.

AMERICAN TO HAVE ALL-STAR STAFF COVERING WORLD SERIES

The Cards have won in the National League, after the closest race in 25 years. The World Series will open as scheduled in Detroit Wednesday, and the Boston Evening American has perfected plans for the most complete coverage on this blue ribbon event of the baseball season.

An all-star staff of Boston Evening American experts, each packing a home run wallop in his writings, will be on the scene in Detroit and in St. Louis while the Tigers and Cardinals battle for diamond fame, cash and glory.

Austen Lake, brilliant sports columnist, will be a press box spectator to report on the unusual features of the play in his own concise and entertaining style.

Joe Cashman, one of the best informed baseball writers in the East, will write on the technical phases of the battles, explaining the vital factors of each game which led to victory or defeat for the Cards or Tigers.

In addition, there will be Damon Runyon, the most famous commentator of sports activities in the country; Bill Corum, another outstanding authority; Sid Mercer, who has covered every World Series for the past score of years, and Bugs Baer, world famous humorist, who will write in his own particular vein.

There will also be comments from several of the players actually engaged in the struggle. The whole of this coverage will be augmented by pictures of each of the World Series games.

The majority of Boston fans will find it impossible to be actual spectators at the clashes. But you can get a closeup of these games through the columns of the Boston Evening American.

Sentiment is a luxury which [illegible] cannot afford, and he thinks that if he has raised players to be heroes it is only fair that he should yank them down off their pedestals when it serves his good purpose.

Only now it is going to be harder to explain firing Frisch after winning a pennant, and maybe the World's Series. And it is possible that he will have to stomach Frankie's big salary another year, rather than listen to the outraged screams of his people, as they have screamed in past years when he let Rogers Hornsby and Bill McKechnie depart after winning pennants.

So you see the Great Victory is really a matter of some mortification to Mr. Breadon, to whom baseball long ago has ceased to be a sport so much as a commercial enterprise and a budget battle between income and outgo.

ST. LOUIS HAS ALWAYS BEEN the Balkans of baseball in which the peasant folk, if they become interested, regard the game as a sort of Holy War, and opposing players, and even news men, as alien objects of hatred.

He would not move out of range to give the savage horde the pleasure of driving him to cover. And though bottles brushed the peak of his cap and grazed his stout figure, he weathered the shower to the last drop and continued to stand, like a colossus, while the ground crew gathered up the ammunition.

Captain Jerry's Victory Path Blurred by Dark Vision

Columbia Laughing Lions Meet Non-Laughing Yale in Big League Opener

By Bill Corum

[illegible] right, including the third one from the end, I should go away out to Detroit and leave you customers to your fate in the matter of [illegible]

On past performances Columbia should win the game because it has been one of the good teams of the East during the past four years, whereas Yale has been for [illegible] their pre-game publicity have been [illegible] for while Columbia was teaching Yale, Yale was winning the game. So maybe we'd better throw that out, too.

THE BULLDOG GETS TOUGH

[illegible] the first interesting and important contest in the East this fall, will provide a meeting between the Laughing Lions of Morningside Heights and the Non-Laughing Yales. [illegible] ceased to regard the gridiron sport as a sort of class rush at dear old Cambridge and are going to be out there dying for Yale [illegible]

Of [illegible] I was also assured, when first I caught the Elis tittering behind torn [illegible] a Harvard [illegible] down last autumn, that I certainly had been suffering an optical illusion. [illegible]

[illegible] These have come either from Yale or from sources close to Yale [illegible] might have been something to the stories of the Laughing Yales. That the Laughing Yales may have [illegible] Otherwise [illegible] the stress or the [illegible] squad that Head Coach Pond is whipping into fine physical condition through long hours of hard drilling. Referee in Luck

By Associated Press.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 2—Police reserves were called to Laurel Garden tonight to protect Referee Jack Phelan of Cranford, and restore order after several hundred fight fans, angry at Phelan's decision in favor of Paul Pirrone, Cleveland middleweight over Lou Halper of Newark, gathered around the ring and threatened the referee.

Phelan finally was escorted to the rear of the hall by five or six policemen and detectives. In spite of their watchfulness one of the fans got inside the lines and hit Phelan. Police promptly hustled the assailant off, but released him later.

It is worthy of note [illegible] that the more conservative press is doing just the opposite. As we said yesterday it will take a second reading to uncover the real [illegible] of the President's talk. We still fail to see any reason to alter our bullish hopes because of anything President Roosevelt said. From a stock market angle technical considerations remain paramount.

DISAGREE ON TOTAL IDLE FIGURES

By B. C. FORBES

B. C. Forbes

"The emergency purpose of the NRA was to put men to work and since its creation more than four million persons have been reemployed, in great part through the cooperation of American business brought about under the codes."

President Green's organization declares that "no progress has been made in the last year to put ten million men back to work."

Organized labor "finds that the year's progress toward recovery fell far short of what it had hoped [illegible] ten millions are without jobs."

One thing certain is that recovery plans have been shown during recent months to have miscarried and that a new tack has become necessary. Franklin Roosevelt, being an adroit sailor, may prove equal to shifting his course before too late.

The one concrete, constructive action announced in his talk was the decision to call together representatives of industry and representatives of organized labor for the purpose of arranging a period of freedom from strikes.

[illegible]

For my part, I cannot fathom why the President's talk should have sent stock and commodity quotations down when business was resumed at the opening of the week. The country is no worse off than it was before.

September's dividend announcements did not maintain the rate of improvement for earlier months of 1934.

Even so, there were 130 cheerful announcements, against 103 last year, 82 two years ago, 55 in 1931 and 119 in 1930.

Unfavorable changes are still unpleasantly frequent—19 last month against eight in August and 18 in July.

SHARE PRICES FIRM AT DULL FINISH

The recovery in the metals was apparently due to the statement of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau that this country's silver policy would remain unchanged despite Chinese protests. United States Smelting was in the van of the upturn, with a three-point gain before meeting profit-taking. American Smelting and Howe Sound scored lesser gains.

GAINS PARED

Interborough Rapid Transit was the strong spot in the local tractions rising more than a point on a renewal of unification rumors.

The rest of the market also showed recovery tendencies which were marked by gains running to 3 points at one time. Profit-taking during the fourth and fifth hours, though, pared gains moderately. Trading also tapered off sharply.

United States Steel and Cohler Industrial shares were in fair demand during the forenoon, but the advance lost its vigor in the afternoon.

Utilities, Oils, Chemicals, and Specialties were quiet,

METAL BUYING

Scattered buying in the metals followed an advance of ⅛ of a cent an ounce in the price of bar silver to 50⅛ cents, another new high since 1929. This indicated to some that the treasury was maintaining its silver buying abroad despite the recent protest of China.

Mature consideration of the presidential "fireside" address brought more optimistic interpretations in financial quarters. The apparent inclination of both labor and industrial leaders to go along with the President in his plea for an armistice was viewed as highly constructive.

The foreign exchange situation continued to hold the attention of the banking sector. With bar gold in London soaring to the highest mark in British history—142 shillings, 2½ pence a fine ounce—the belief was growing that, notwithstanding intermittent rallies of sterling, this currency is apparently pointed toward its gold dollar parity of $4.85 2-3.

The thinness of the present equities market led some brokers to refer to it as a "shopping market." On an order to buy or sell 1000 shares of leading issues within reasonable limits, it wa aid, it frequently required an hour or so to complete the transaction

Dollar Higher at Close in London

London, Oct. 2 (AP)—The United States dollar today moved a fraction nearer its old sterling parity of 4.86 2-3 to the pound, closing at 4.92¼ in a day which saw the price of bar gold soar to the highest mark in history under the influence of the weakened pound.

After opening at 4.90¾, the close was 3¼ cents to the pound better than the overnight rate of 4.95½.

NEW YORK CLOSE

In order to facilitate the computation of margins under the regulations of the Security Exchange Act, the Boston Evening American now carries the low since July 1, 1933, instead of the low for the year. The Securities Exchange Act provides that until July 1, 1936, the lowest price at which a security has sold since July 1, 1933, shall be considered as the lowest market price in the preceding 36 months. After July 1, 1936, the Act provides that the lowest price in the preceding 36 months will form the basis for margin computation.

STATE STREET SIDELIGHTS

Josephthal & Co.—It is quite possible that the market is not as bad as it looks and unless volume increases on the downside we think it best to continue a constructive attitude favoring stocks of companies aided by seasonal influences such as the merchandise, amusement, cigar and certain utility and rail issues.

Paine, Webber & Co.—Although it seems likely that increasingly strong support will become operative on any further small dip, believe it best to await the appearance of such support before initiating commitments for trading purposes.

J. S. Bache & Co.—It seems to us that the cautious sellers of late last week were discreet purchasers during the final hour of yesterday's session and are likely to continue such a policy on any additional softness today.

G. M.-P. Murphy & Co.—Yesterday's sharp decline places prices close enough to the lows of last month to permit more enthusiastic advices.

Clark, Childs & Keech—We expect the market to receive strong support at or close to current levels.

Island Creek Will Pay $105 for Stock

Island Creek Coal Co. is mailing a notice to holders of its $6 preferred stock, offering to receive tenders of the preferred at a price not to exceed $105 per share. This price is in line with the current market.

The company has been gradually buying in its preferred for some years, and at the close of 1933 there were 26,145 1-3 shares outstanding, out of an original issue of 49,869 8-18 shares.

Increase in Radio Set Sales Noted

New York, Oct. 2—Total sales of radio receivers, by "licensed manufacturers," for the first half of 1934 are reported as slightly in excess of 1,774,700, it is reported by the magazine Radio Retailing.

This tops the record for 1933 (1,436,000) by 338,700 sets, the report continues. Estimated retail dollar volume rise was even greater—from $42,000,000 to $70,000,000.

As could be expected, sales for the second quarter, 1934, fell below those of the January to March figure—790,000 as against 984,700 sets. Also a drop from the corresponding second quarter of 1933—which was 843,300 sets.

The average unit price, however, shows an appreciable gain, having risen from $33.60 for the second quarter of 1933 to about $40.50 for the second quarter of the current year. These figures confirm other evidence that consoles are coming into the foreground again.

Automobile radio sets have not come up to expectations for 1934. Sales of these units have run behind the budgets set up by the makers at the beginning of the year, based on 1933 sales. It is this drop in automobile sets which mainly accounts for the 1934 second quarter falling behind 1933 for the same period.

Averaging the half-year ratios shown here and applying them to the figures for the first half of 1934, indicates the total production for 1934 will be about 4,400,000 radio sets.

OUTPUT OF OIL IS LOWER

By Associated Press

Tulsa, Okla., Oct. 2—Decreases in Oklahoma and California resulted in a 37,975 barrel reduction in daily average crude oil production of the United States last week, the oil and gas journal says. Production fell from 2,540,675 to 2,502,700 barrels.

Oklahoma production fell from 476,355 to 451,205 barrels; that of California dropped 465,000 to 445,000 barrels.

Texas again showed an increase in production from 1,111,604 barrels to 1,121,047 barrels with East Texas production jumping from 525,224 barrels to 527,075 barrels a day.

Lackawanna Loss Is Light in 1934

VEAL IS MOST VERSATILE MEAT

Veal is a thoroughly versatile meat. It fills the bill for the heartiest of family dinners, or makes up into delicately flavored salads and dainty meat dishes for party luncheon, or invalid tray. Many a time has it doubled for chicken in creamed dishes or salads.

It's that mild delicate flavor of veal and its inherent tenderness which makes it so popular and such a wise meat choice.

There are a good many grades of veal just as there are of beef. Milk-fed veal from animals [illegible] to 12 weeks old is probably the top-notch quality. It will be a soft greyish pink in color, fine in texture, good and firm and have a noticeable amount of creamy white fat. If the meat is [illegible] red [illegible] pink and the bones are no longer slightly pink, you can be sure the veal has almost reached the baby beef stage. Poor quality veal is limp, dull in color and has no fat whatever.

NEEDS CARE IN COOKING

Even though veal is tender young meat, it requires very definite care in cooking it if it is to be flavory, juicy and tender. Undercooked veal is not at its best in flavor, and over-cooked veal tends to be crumbly and dry.

Veal roasts are best chosen from the round, or the arm cut off the shoulder. The whole shoulder or breast, boned and stuffed, also makes delicious roast, easily prepared and carved. A perfect veal leg roast can be made by placing the meat, fat side up, in an open roasting pan and cooking it without the addition of any water for 30 to 35 minutes to the pound. The secret success lies in keeping the oven temperature down to 300-325 deg. F., the temperature for an angel food cake. You will be delighted with the delicious browness, high flavor and luscious juiciness of a veal roast thus cooked. Overcooking—either in length of time or too high an oven—detracts from the perfection of the result.

VEAL CUTLETS

The round of veal, cut in pieces of steak thickness, is usually called veal cutlets. These and the chops cut from either loin or rib are best prepared by braising them. Dip the meat, first in beaten egg, then in fine bread or cracker crumbs. Brown it to a delicious golden brown in salt pork fat, lard or butter, and then cover very closely and turn the fire as low as possible. Thirty to 40 minutes of this slow cooking will give a tender, well-cooked meat. For variety use a sour cream gravy over the chops, or a mild tomato gravy, carefully seasoned.

It is important that seasoning for veal, and the vegetables served with it, should be carefully chosen to blend with it in flavor. Because of its lack of fat, strips or tiny cubes of salt pork used to cover the roast, or cooked with the stew, make a delicious addition of flavor and fat.

Avoid strong flavored vegetables with veal. Sweet potatoes, squash, new carrots, spinach, celery and cauliflower make excellent vegetable combinations. Apple jelly, crab apple jelly or peach pickles make spicy additions.

VEAL BIRDS

Cut veal cutlets into convenient pieces and flatten with a potato masher. Mix seasoned crumbs with chopped salt pork and chopped celery and make a stuffing. Roll up and tie into shape with strings. Brown in butter or lard. Add 1 cup of thin white sauce, cover and cook slowly for 40 minutes. This may be prepared in a casserole.

VEAL STEW

2 veal breast
½ salt pork
2 teaspoons salt
1 cup peas
½ green pepper
2 tablespoons flour.
Ingredients for Dumplings:
2 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons baking powder
¾ cup diluted evaporated milk.

Cut salt pork in cubes and fry until very lightly brown, add veal cut in pieces and let it brown lightly. Cover with cold water, add salt and cover closely. Let simmer two hours. Thicken the gravy with the flour stirred into a little water. Add peas and pepper.

Make the dumplings 20 minutes before the stew is to be served. Sift the flour, salt, and baking powder and add all the milk at once, stirring only enough to mix lightly. Drop by spoonfuls onto the meat in the stew, cover closely and let steam 15 minutes. Remove dumpling and serve stew on a deep platter surrounded by dumplings.

Today you'll recognize many of your favorite Hollywood stars, as appearing in the second of this week's Boston Evening American's "About Faces" series.

All of these prominent celebrities are entertaining at the Modern theater where they may be seen in either of these two pictures, "British Agent," or "One In A Million." Visit the Modern theater and identify the drawings in today's "About Faces" cartoon. If you are successful and can answer the remaining "About Faces" drawings as they will appear in the Boston Evening American the rest of this week, you will be entitled to share in the $25 in cash prizes.

Mail in your entire week's solutions to the "About Faces" Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston, Mass.

To successfully complete this series you will find a block of squares beneath the drawing of your favorite Hollywood star. Each square equals a letter in his name. Fill in these squares correctly, using using the given letter as a clue. Be sure to answer the question asked daily in the drawing.

For the most original and most correct replies, the Boston Evening American will award: First prize, $5.00; second prize, $3.00; third prize, $2.00, and 15 prizes of a brand new dollar bill, each.

It's easy to win! Enter now!

Martha P. Harty Weds in New York

Miss Martha P. Harty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Harty, of Dover street, West Medford, and Theodore Martin, Jr., of East Orange, N. J., were married at the Hotel McAlpin in New York City, according to dispatches to friends in Medford today.

Good Food Values in and Around Boston

Chosen for the Cooking School

A SMALL PIECE of electrical equipment that is proving very helpful to the modern housewife is an electric casserole which can be used for a great many dishes. Mrs. Northcross chose this particular casserole for her demonstrations at the Cooking School last week at the Hotel Bradford. It is of attractive green enamel, with a pyrex cover. We can tell you where it can be purchased for $4.45, regularly $5.50.

IF YOU ARE one of those who finds it inconvenient or impractical to do up your own jellies, you will be interested in a large five-pound jar of grape jelly which is selling at a nearby food shop for $1.10. Excellent with breakfast toast or muffins, or for those between-meal snacks.

IT HAS BEEN PREDICTED that food prices will rise this Fall. Here is your opportunity to fill up the cupboard, through an unusual sale of canned vegetables. Possible because the vegetables were purchased before the market prices advanced. Many items included in it—golden bantam corn, 3 No. 2 cans for 32c; 3 No. 2 cans of peas, 53c; 3 No. 2 cans string beans, 49c; 3 No. 2 cans tomatoes, 37c; 3 No. 2 cans tomatoes, 53c; 3 No. 2 cans beets, 53c; 2 15-oz. cans beets, 53c; 2 15-oz. cans asparagus, 47c; 3 No. 2½ cans spinach, 39c; 3 No. 2 cans sauerkraut, 39c. It has been figured out that by purchasing a dozen each of these canned foods at the present time, the thrifty housewife will save $5.50.

A TRAY DESIGNED to make being a hostess a simple and enjoyable matter contains six glass dishes for sandwich spread, bread board and a space for electric toaster, so that your guests may serve themselves. The tray is made of finished wood and natural finish, with black wood handles. 14x21 inches. $2.95.

DRESSING UP the table? You'll be interested in an attractive display of pyrex casserole dishes, which can rest on chromium servers. Lovely flat-top covered casserole, 2½-quart size, $2.95, or this same server comes with cheese board or relish dish, for $1.50. Not only makes an attractive service, but lessens the work of the housewife, for foods are baked in the casserole dishes and brought as they are to the table.

THE EMERGENCY SHELF can never have too many appetizers to take care of those occasions which arise in the best of families. Olives, stuffed with tiny pearl onions, come in a 6-oz. jar for 25c. Stick them on to gay, colored toothpicks, and serve them to admiring guests.

RASPBERRIES, when in season, have proved their excellence and adaptability to many dishes. Here is an offer of a fancy red raspberry at a special price of 15c for a one-pound can. Manufactured by a famous packing house. Take advantage of this offer and serve those delightful dishes all year round.

FOOD FOR THE EPICURE—whole preserved strawberries which have retained their natural color, flavor and appearance. French marrons glace in vanilla syrup and French marrons in brandy, any of which give an unusual and delicate touch to a dessert, to top off special meals. All three come in 13-oz. jars, at $1.10.

SOMETHING FOR emergency meals. A quick-fixed chicken shortcake which comes in two attached tins. The top tin contains the chicken and gravy which needs only to be heated to use. The bottom tin contains a baking powder biscuit mixture to which milk or water may be added to make biscuits for the shortcake. 58c for the combination which will serve six people. Excellent suggestion for a hasty treat for the bridge table, or for unexpected droppers-in. Let us tell you where a demonstration is going on for the entire week.

THE SMALL, WOODEN chopping bowl and chopper, which we use at our Cooking School here, causes much comment among members of the class. These attractive, natural colored, or blue bowls with the chopper handles to match, can be purchased for $1.39. The chopper has a stainless blade and one which is strong enough for all ordinary chopping purposes. Very convenient and practical. Add one to your kitchen equipment.

DON'T FORGET to enclose that necessary name and address, as well as a loose 3c stamp, when asking for information on any of the above items. Or, telephone Martha Lee at LIBerty 4000.

Faithfully yours,

MARTHA LEE.

DAUGHTERS OF VENUS

By Robert Terry Shannon

SYNOPSIS

Juliet Rankin's pulchritude wins her an executive position in the beauty institute operated by wealthy Madame Hubert. At first, Thomas O'Hara, the handsome manager, is antagonistic toward Juliet, but he finally admits he is in love with her and has been trying to fight that feeling. Due to fatal resemblance to her dead sweetheart, Juliet submits to O'Hara's caresses. Finding them together, Dr. Franz Von Guerdon, beauty specialist, also in love with Juliet, is insanely jealous.

He threatens to kill Juliet if she bothers with O'Hara, stating that she belongs to him. Later, Juliet tries to convince O'Hara that they do not love each other but were both overcome with emotion the night she permitted him to kiss her. He shows her an engagement and a wedding ring, saying, "Here's how much I meant it—sap that I was!" Juliet is assigned to work with Von Guerdon. It is when he concentrates on his work, ignoring her, that Juliet likes him best.

CHAPTER XIII

"I wonder why a man of your ability wastes his time on facial surgery?" she asked him one afternoon.

"Perhaps it's because it makes so many people happy," he smiled. "Do you know anything better than that?"

"Saving sick people's lives might be better," she hazarded.

"Pardon, but you're entirely wrong. There are ten thousand men who can perform an appendectomy with their eyes shut, but there are not more than three in the world who can make a woman of 50 look like 30."

Perhaps there was a crushing answer somewhere in the universe to his argument, but Juliet at the moment could not think of it. All the same, she knew there was something hollow in his words and that he probably was jibing when he uttered them.

But any possible rejoinder was forestalled by the entrance of O'Hara followed by a poorly-dressed girl who managed to give the impression she was trotting at his heels like an airedale.

PURSUES BEAUTY

O'Hara looked around over the wrong shoulder and missed sight of her. "Good Lord! Have I lost her?" he exclaimed.

"Here I am, O'Hara," piped a babyish voice, as she came around on the other side.

"Ah, there you are indeed," said O'Hara, courteously. "Folks, I want you to meet Miss Katie Schmidt. She's been wandering around the place for a half hour, and wound up in my office instead of over here where she belongs. From what I gather she wants to be beautified."

Katie seemed to beam with gratitude towards O'Hara, but this may have been an illusion because one of her eyes was terribly crossed. Now was this all—her nose was somewhat askew, her complexion mottled, and her long mouse-colored hair had a lamentable tendency to straggle at the ends.

"Thank you kindly, Mr. O'Hara," said the girl.

"And thank you, Miss Schmidt," returned O'Hara politely. "I wish you'd look this young lady over, Dr. Von Guerdon, and see what is to be done about her."

"Delighted to do what I can for any friend of yours," returned Von Guerdon maliciously.

O'Hara looked the surgeon straight in the eye, ignoring Juliet as completely as though she were not in the room.

"That's right, Von Guerdon," he said levelly. "Miss Schmidt is a friend of mine, even though I have just had the honor of meeting her."

"Thank you kindly, Mr. O'Hara," said the baby voice again.

ACTS CONSIDERATELY

There they stood, two fairly decent and reasonably civilized men glowering at each other like angry dogs, and all because the very presence of slim-ankled Juliet was sufficient to draw their nerves taut and set them strumming.

"It's all right, Mr. O'Hara," said Juliet, her eyes on bewildered Katie Schmidt. "I'll look after her."

For the first time O'Hara seemed to notice Juliet.

"I'll appreciate that, Miss Rankin," he said formally, and went out of the door before Katie had an opportunity to thank him very kindly again.

When O'Hara had gone, be it said to Von Guerdon's credit, he was as considerate of Katie Schmidt as though she were a dowager with Pekinese and chauffeur and her own limousine.

"Won't you sit down and tell us what you want?" he asked, but his crisp professional air seemed to afflict Katie Schmidt with an increased stupidity that left her round-eyed and speechless.

"How much money will it cost," she popped out, "to do me over—like her?"

It was plain that "her" meant Juliet, and the baby voice had forfeited something of its infancy in favor of a rather startling brassy note.

Then Katie Schmidt burst into her idea.

EYE STRAIGHTENING

"The whole works!" she declared fervently. "You can straighten eyes, can't yuh? Only one's crossed."

"We can fix that," Von Guerdon assured her.

"Noses, too?"

"I think so." He gave that twisted organ a keener glance. "Yes, but it's a delicate operation that takes time. It's expensive."

"If yuh can fix them two things the rest is a cinch," said Katie. "I hear about these face peels. Yuh put on some kind of stuff that eats away the outside skin and the underskin comes out pink and smooth like a baby's. You do that here?"

"Frequently," she was assured.

"Swell!" exclaimed Katie, with mounting excitement in her face and voice. "The hair's nothing. I could almost do it myself, but I want it done right. Platinumed—not bleached. Know what I mean? My teeth ain't so awful, but they ain't straight and they need fillin'. Place where I worked the lady had a porcelain jacket put on one of hers, and it was marv'less. I'd want yuh to put jackets clear across the front, top and bottom. Yuh won't have to do nothing to my figger, 'cause that's practically perfect already. Oughto see me in a bathing suit—yuh'd be surprised."

Von Guerdon's expression was not hopeful.

The girl clasped her hands together and then unclasped them quickly. Rough, grimy little hands used to work.

For a minute nothing was said. As the silence in the room waited for someone to break it, the distorted gaze looked down at the carpet, then moved around, lifted no higher than the backs of the smart upholstered chairs, the standing bookcases, the opulent desk at the far end.

SPURNS FRIENDS

Juliet inspected the girl, so silent now, and she seemed like a small injured animal who had crept to them for help.

"Well, I guess—" Katie Schmidt began, lifting her face slightly, "I guess it'll set me back a-plenty."

Juliet sent an appealing glance to Von Guerdon but he shook his head. But when he spoke his voice was considerate.

"I'm quite sure, Miss Schmidt, you couldn't afford the fees we are forced to charge here. Only the rich class of people have such work done. None of these—alterations—is necessary for your general health, you know. If I were you I think I'd put the whole idea out of my head and cultivate some other interest. After all, beauty isn't everything. Friends, for example, are much more important."

"Friends—don't make me laugh!" she shrilled. "I'd like to get rid of the ones I've got already. All I want to know is what will it cost? That's all—how much?"

Juliet dreaded to see the girl's disappointment. "If I were you," she said gently, "I believe I'd get more fun spending what I had on some real nice clothes."

Miss Schmidt turned swiftly.

"If you was me!" she jeered. "If you was me you'd soon see how it felt to look like I do! It's me that's got to look in the mirror every day of my darn life! I gotaz much right as anybody to be beautiful. It's nobody's business but my own. I ain't doin' this fer any man. I'm doin' it to please nobody but my own lonesome self!"

The outburst left her panting slightly. Von Guerdon made a few quick notes on a pad of paper.

"That includes the teeth and everythin'?" she asked shrewdly.

"I've included the dental work," he told her. "Now, the only question is—do you have $3000, Miss Schmidt?"

"No, I ain't," she said, the fire dying in her voice. "And I never will have that much."

Without another word she crossed the room, opened the door, and disappeared into the obscurity from which she had come.

THAT NAZI DIVA . . .

. . . RICHARD STRAUSS wrote the title role of his latest opera ARABELLA for LOTTE LEHMANN—but VIORICA URSULEAC created it at the world premiere, DRESDEN, July 1, 1933 . . . the eminent composer, 70 this year, was forbidden by DIE FUEHRER to conduct the opening FIDELIO at the SALZBURG FESTIVAL last JULY . . . but appeared later in the audience and was roundly applauded and hissed . . .!

BUDAPEST news carried a VIENNA-censored report last week that the apartments of URSULEAC and the baritone HAMES were searched for NAZI propaganda—the soprano's wire had been tapped during a conversation from SALZBURG to VIENNA . . . what the secret police DID NOT KNOW was that URSULEAC, balked at usurping the LEHMANN repertoire, was intriguing with BERLIN to gain a possible engagement for CLEMENS KRAUSS . . . whose unique contract with the Vienna Opera allows that famed institution to relieve him of his duties as a conductor—PROVIDED a six months notice is given . . . KRAUSS, questioned, revealed nothing . . . but the AUSTRIAN premier, SCHUSCHNIGG, appeared at a performance of STRAUSS' Die Frau Ohn Schatten to applaud LOTTE LEHMANN, who has long sung the cruelly exacting roles of Die Faerberfrau, and Christine in Intermezzo (counterpart of Pauline de Anna STRAUSS) out of compliment to the composer.

DIAMON JUBILEE!

. . . and the first program of the 75th Worcester Festival is as brilliant as its name . . .

CESAR FRANCK . . .

Psalm 150 is not one of the Belgian mystics most potent works . . . but in it is the expert choral writing and the musical psalmist's organ of praise! Hardly more than an opener for . . .

FREDERICK DELIUS . . .

SEA DRIFT, a musical setting of Walt Whitman's poem . . . Varied was Delius' life and strange his entry into music. When young he went to FLORIDA to grow oranges . . . but later, despite parental objection, he entered music, and from his mind wasto grow some of the finest flowers of impressionism . . . Delius, despite training in Paris, was a musical internationalist . . . his measures speak of the world . . . often in the tenderest and most poignant of accents . . . SEA DRIFT sings of two sea birds by the shore of Paymanok, of the mate's disappearance, of the male's solitary watch and his heartbroken cry of longing. Fortunate that Delius was at last recognized by England, fortunate that his most sympathetic friend was also his greatest interpreter . . . Sir THOMAS BEECHAM.

Performance: The solo baritone, ROBERT CRAWFORD intoned the solo measures in excellent style, but the atmospheric tone pictures of DELIUS are for the rare not the average conductor.

ARTHUR HONEGGER . . .

LE ROI DAVID . . . dramatic work on a heroic scale . . . story . . . David as Shepherd, Chief, King and . . . PROPHET . . . HONEGGER reacts violently against the very school that Franck started . . . his music crackles . . . and burns . . . his dissonances melt into his melodies . . . his solo voices pierce a background of plangent rhythmic sound . . . his terminology is terse . . . stripped to the bone . . . of a stark and virile simplicity . . . music of our time . . . there is song in his hymn of DAVID . . .

PERFORMANCE: Of the soloists JEANETTE VREELAND (her husband the vocal one-who-knows, PERCY RECTOR STEPHENS) acquitted herself the best . . . her silvery tones of golden hue rose easily and with sureness of pitch over the ticklish harmonies of the Honegger score . . . FREDERICK JAGEL was the full-voiced Psalmist . . . and an actor might envy the diction and full-bodied speaking voice of GEAN GREEWELLL, who intoned the story which holds the Psalms together . . .

ARTHUR HONEGGER despite the radicalism of his music is the mildest and most ingratiating of men . . . his tournee in the United States a few years ago was but mild success . . . the far-famed COBINA WRIGHT his soloist . . .

FESTIVAL IMPRESSIONS:

BIG ECONOMY SALE PLANNED

Firmly convinced of the great value of newspaper advertising, the Economy Grocery Stores are announcing their fall "New Customers' Week" in 10 full pages of newspaper space. This is the third time this year that this chain has planned so extensive a campaign for a single sale.

Convinced that there is greater consumer purchasing power on tap in the Boston market this fall than there has been in the last few years, officials of the Ecco stores today said that this 10-page campaign was just the first big display of their fall program, the largest in the history of the firm.

To back the newspaper advertising, outstanding values are being offered in all Ecco stores, not only to attract new customers, but also to give old patrons an opportunity for unusual savings.

To justify this policy of good values and newspaper advertising store officials point to the marvelous growth of their organization. Hardly a week goes by in which some store is not enlarged or remodelled or a new one opened in some suburban shopping center.

Each of these stores is a complete food shop, where the housewife can purchase everything from groceries and meats to fresh milk and cream—all sold on the firm's quality basis.

Gray Hair
Best Remedy is Made At Home

You can now make at home a better gray hair remedy than you can buy by following this simple recipe: To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it yourself at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained.

Barbo imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair, making it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

3 Bids and Proposals

PROPOSAL.

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS—Department of Mental Diseases.—National Industrial Recovery Project Mass. State No. M-2—P.W.A. Docket No. 960.—Notice to Contractors.—Sealed proposals for Electric Wiring in Central Power plant at the Boston State Hospital, Dorchester Center, Mass., will be received by the Department of Mental Diseases at Room 167, State House, Boston, until 2 o'clock P. M., standard time, Tuesday, October 9, 1934, and at that time and place will be publicly opened and read. Bids must be made upon the Department's prescribed special form of contract for projects financed and constructed under the terms of National Industrial Recovery Act and Chapter 365 of the Acts of 1933, to which is attached and made a part thereof the Special Contract Provisions Revised April 15, 1934, of the Federal Emergency administration of Public Works and the State Emergency Public Works Commission. Special attention of the bidders is called to the prescribed minimum wage rates of $1.20 per hour for skilled labor and $.50 per hour for unskilled labor, and to the special provision as to semi-skilled labor.

Pursuant to Executive Order 6646, dated March 14, 1934, no bid will be considered unless it includes or is accompanied by a certificate (worded in accordance with P.W.A. 61 revised March 19, 1934), duly executed by the bidder.

All bidders shall be required to file with their bids a properly executed certificate of workmen's compensation insurance issued by a company satisfactory to the State Commissioner of Insurance.

Plans, specifications and contract forms may be obtained at Room 315, Ford Building, 15 Ashburton Place, Boston, Mass., upon deposit of $150.00. This amount is to be included in the estimate and all checks but that of the successful bidders will be returned upon return of the plans and specifications. Plans and specifications may be seen at the office of the engineer, Richard D. Kimball Company, 6 Beacon St., Boston, Massachusetts.

Bids must be accompanied by a properly certified check on, or a certificate of deposit issued by, a responsible bank or trust company in the amount of $2000, made payable to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Checks and certificates will be returned after execution of the contract upon demand. A surety bond by an approved surety company will be required from the successful bidder in an amount not less than the full amount of the contract. The right is reserved to reject any or all proposals, or to accept any proposal deemed best for the Commonwealth, and no award can be made without the approval of the State Engineer, P.W.A. and of the State Emergency Public Works Commission.

The local registration office of the National Reemployment Service from which employee lists for this contract shall be obtained (as required in Article C of the Special Contract Provisions), in Massachusetts State Employment Service, 100 Nashua Street, Boston, Massachusetts.

X-RAY

Examination, consultation and trial treatment absolutely free to all who call before Oct. 7th. The wonderful power of the X-ray and mercury quartz light treatment is accomplishing wonders in diseases of every description. No matter what your disease may be, remember Daniel J. Walsh, M. D., fulfills the above offer.

STOMACH TROUBLE

Mr. William Walsh, 15 Lincoln Park, So. Boston:—"I had stomach trouble for 22 years. I had been treated by many doctors in Canada and in New York City as well as other places. I took many stomach remedies but nothing helped me. I heard of Dr. Walsh through a Mrs. McCoe, who said Dr. Walsh had helped her. I was so bad I thought I would die. So I had Dr. Walsh treat me. I improved rapidly under Dr. Walsh's care until I feel fine now. I have sent a number of patients to Dr. Walsh and I make this statement for publication in the hope of helping others who suffer as I did."

(Signed) William Walsh.

War Through the Air

It Is Surely Coming. Where Will It Strike First? Here Perhaps?

AMERICANS of common sense, with time and inclination to take their minds for a minute from the latest prizefight or the latest Brain Trust fad, will be interested in the airship pictures on this page.

The big picture at the top shows one of three giant Russian bombing planes that recently flew to Rome to pay a complimentary visit to Mussolini, and possibly to remind Mussolini that Stalin's country, a good deal bigger than the United States, with twice the population of Italy and France combined, does not intend forever to have the outside world telling it what it may, and may not, do.

When they saw those well trained Russian fliers in uniform, and the three big bombing ships, that all by themselves could wipe out Rome and Rome's population in one day, the Mussolini men must have done some serious thinking.

Even the sort of men that we have in charge of our national defense, ought to have brains enough to know that a rabbit has a poor chance against a hawk, and that soldiers crawling on the ground are mere helpless "rabbits" compared with airplane hawks above them. Those ships of the air with machine gun bullets, explosive bombs and deadly gases, could wipe out foot soldiers, cavalry and other out-of-date "defense" faster than the army could enroll them, or send them marching to their death.

We have a so-called air force in the United States, one of the weakest and smallest owned by any of the "great nations." As a matter of fact, since the true "greatness" of a nation depends upon its ability to defend itself, and since this nation has no adequate air defense, perhaps it is a little presumptuous to call this a "great nation." A man or nation that does not know enough to protect itself is hardly great.

General William Mitchell, who was in charge of our air forces in the big war, and was released from his place in the army because he told too much truth about the gang that makes money from worthless battleships, and too much truth about the importance of the airplane, says that airships TODAY can be built to fly seven thousand miles without taking on fuel, and fly six miles up in the air, which means that nothing from the ground could reach them, even if they were seen, and heard, and that enemy ships could come, non-stop from Europe or Asia.

TWO OF THE RUSSIAN AIR GIANTS ON THE GROUND.

How would our solemn owls in Washington, under the roof of the Capitol and the roofs of the Army and Navy Departments feel if they saw a flock of one hundred bombing planes like the one at the top of this page, suddenly zooming over Washington?

Until this country is really prepared in the air, until it is able to say truly to other nations, "If you strike at the United States, we shall destroy your big cities and your populations immediately thereafter," it cannot call itself safe.

Until the country has an air fleet worthy of its size, intelligence and wealth, it will do well to be extremely polite to other nations, including Russia, that do possess intelligence enough to know what airships will mean in war, and the energy to build them.

The smaller picture in this column is printed to call your attention to the extraordinary length of these Russian bombers, something new in airplane construction.

Russia, like other nations, is training fliers intensively, not a few hundreds, but thousands of them. Thousands of Russians are trained for parachute jumping, more than six million are schooled in aero dynamics, and this in a country impoverished by war and revolution, ostracized by other nations, that, one day, may regret it.

What a disgrace that this, the richest country, pouring out its billions in response to every theory, should lack the common sense to spend even one billion for air defense.

Teach or Learn?

Today's meat is tomorrow's poison and vice versa. Only a few years ago people thought tomatoes caused cancer. Now they are known to contain health-giving vitamines.

In New England colleges our language itself has undergone drastic changes. Students are told to say "I will teach you" instead of "I will learn you."

Yet Phillips Andover Academy, founded in the days of the American Revolution, tells us in its Constitution that it was founded to instruct youth in the ordinary branches of knowledge,

> "But more especially to learn them the great end and real business of living."

"Learn" for "teach" was unchallenged English in Shakespeare's day. And New England commoners preserve the ancient tongue!

Pickle Prospects Poor

Pickle packers predict the pickle pack for 1934 will be poor, according to present prospects. Perhaps the fact that pickle prices have been very low for the past few years has induced raisers to cut down production.

In New England home pickling is in progress. The cucumber in this section is closely rivaled as a pickle source by tomatoes, prepared in various forms, as Boston cookbooks show.

Then we have pickled peppers. Remember

> "The peck of pickled peppers Peter Piper picked."

With so many things being pickled, we can't feel that New England is facing any serious dearth of pickles. But, if it comes, we must school ourselves to eating Boston baked beans with some substitute for their favorite relish.

Listen, World! -:- By Elsie Robinson

He Didn't Believe in Changes

Old Man Pooh was dead at last. He had died rather horribly—screeching, scrambling through the flames—groping frantically for something he alone could see in the roaring darkness. He still wouldn't believe it. Even now, as he lay huddled in the farthest corner of his cave, his face seemed twisting in angry denial.

Elsie Robinson

But there was no one to answer him. Days since they had all fled—found safety and a new start on the wide, bright plains below the blazing mountain.

Actually there were few left for that final flight. For years the tribe had been wandering off, in couples, in groups. And always before they went they had tried to persuade Old Man Pooh to go with them.

OLD DAYS OVER

Surely—they argued—he must see that the old days were over. Why should men live longer like hunted animals, burrowing in the earth, when a better way had been found? See—they cried eagerly—see the New Things that have come!

The clean, pleasant dwelling places which a man might build of new sticks and skins—instead of cowering in a dark and dirty cave.

The cooking bowls of baked clay, the woven baskets, where one might store food against a lean day, instead of gobbling it, bloody raw, like a beast.

But Old Man Pooh would not see. "New things—better things"—he cackled with derision. He snarled with rage at the very thought. What better things could there possibly be than those of his own youth? Why this mad desire for "newness?" Not for him!

ARGUMENT CHANGES

The Good Old Days—for the last 40 years Old Man Pooh had been harking back to them, until the tribe was sick of his tiresome wheeze. In vain they argued and pleaded—showing how dreary and dangerous life had become in the dark and savage forest, pointing to the full, free life on the plains below. Nothing could shake him.

Presently their argument changed—grew shrill with terror. On the ridge above them a terrible thing was happening. Through the nights there was a rumbling and a quaking—and by day wisps of stinging smoke oozed from old fissures, crawled between the rocks like snakes, burst into brief, biting flame. Something horrible—unbearable—was upon them. Now, surely, he must move!

But Old Man Pooh only cackled the more loudly . . . called them weaklings, cowards, excitable fools. Never in his life or his fathers' lives had the mountain blazed. Then why should he fear?

So at last they left him and fled. That night it happened. Suddenly, with a roar that split the heavens, the mountain heaved—belched flame. But not until the fiery flood lapped his very cave sill would Old Man Pooh believe that it was true.

Stupidly, angrily, he watched it advance—thinking each moment it would stop. But it did not stop. The darkness was a smothering horror—lit by the torches of the burning trees. On every side rose the squawl and bellow of animals in their death agony. There was a crashing and howling—

Yet still Old Man Pooh muttered and cackled—"It can't be! It can't be! Never in my time or my fathers' time—"

In the midst of his mutter, the flames caught him. Even as he ran screeching, choking, his hands still clutched at something he alone could see in the raving darkness—reaching, vainly, for those Good Old Days on which he had put all his trust, for which he had given his chance of life.

Just a story? No—the truest and most tragic record in life. Millions of humans in every generation live and die as Old Man Pooh did, passing up all the beauty and joy of new adventures for the sake of moldy memories . . . choking to death at last in the roaring upheaval of Change.

Millions of people are living and dying like that today. Never, perhaps, since men left their trees and caves and began to live like human beings has such terrific change occurred in human affairs. Some, moving with life, will survive the change—make a new start in a freer, better order.

But others will cling, like Old Man Pooh, to their small, dark caves . . . yammering to the last for the Good Old Days . . . protesting that what was good enough for their fathers is good enough for them.

And YOU? The mountain is muttering. The smoke is beginning to rise. Are you on your way? Or are you hanging back, with Old Man Pooh?

Motor Adventure

By Winifred Black

"Bambino went out on strike the other day," said the motor maniac.

Winifred Black

"M-m," we call the motor maniac for short.

"M-m" is just crazy about motoring. She thinks nothing of getting up in the morning and starting off to Canada or Hollywood, helter skelter with the wind singing in her ears and she laughing aloud for joy.

She isn't quite so gay about it right now.

"You remember Bambino, don't you?" said "M-m." "She's the big old car with the soft upholstery and everything. We've gone a good many thousand miles with Bambino and she's always been as good as gold, but she's never been the same since we bought the little new car.

"'Easy Riding Johnny,' that's what we call the new car. Johnny didn't cost much and he's as quick as a cat and the way that Johnny can skim over the hills, why you'd never believe it.

"And we sort of got tired of Bambino, she seemed so big and sort of clumsy, and we got to calling her an awful name.

CALLED CAR NAMES

"Whenever there was company and we took out the big car we looked at each other and said, 'I guess we'll have to take the hearse'—and she did seem sort of like a hearse. Oh, she was fast enough and comfortable enough, but she was sort of big and clumsy and there seemed to be so much weight and space dragging behind us. And do you know, I believe Bambino heard us call her the hearse and she didn't half like it.

"I noticed her looking sort of sulky the other day when we said we wished we could take Johnny and not bother with the hearse.

"If a car could hang its head and pout, that's what Bambino did. I felt sort of sorry about it myself.

"But off we went in Bambino with the lunch kit and the shovel so we could dig up some of that nice sugar sand down the road, oh, quite a piece down.

"No, the sand isn't sweet, it's just sugar white, that's all, and we wanted some of it to put in the gold fish pond—so off we were, and the sun shining and the wind whistling and everything all hunky dory.

"We forgot all about Johnny until we came to some quick turns in the road, and I said:

A NARROW ESCAPE

"Poor old Bambino, she does make you think of a hearse, doesn't she. Now the way Johnny would take this curve—I didn't say another syllable—not then.

"Bambino gave kind of a lurch and I'll swear she snorted, too, the way good old Aunt Susan snorts when she doesn't like what you're saying and there we were all covered with glass and things and the traffic cops around us like pall bearers and doctors and a hospital and nurses and poor old Bambino is in the hospital herself, and I'm not crazy to go motoring—just now."

Of course, we all laughed and then we all shook our heads and were sympathetic for "M-m" was really quite seriously hurt and so were the people in the car with her, but somehow I'm sort of haunted by the thought of poor old Bambino and how they called her the hearse and how she pretty nearly did turn into a hearse, too.

Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland

NEW CODE FOR WOMEN

Wonder why, with all his sagacity, no man is ever astute enough to size up a woman according to the appraisal of her own sex. No man ever knew a woman as well as her fellow-women know her.

Helen Rowland

If a woman was heartily disliked by other women, it used to be a feather in her cap. The men merely concluded that all the other women must be "jealous of her." And she sweetly fostered the flattering illusion.

Here and there, you will still find a few old-fangled gals who pride themselves on the fact that they "don't like women."

They fancy that boast establishes them as sirens and mancharmers, whereas it merely sets them down as members of the Ancient Order of Felines.

In the day and age, a woman, however young and beautiful, can be popular with both men and women. Because she can be both a charmer and a "square-shooter." Because she can be both attractive—and a "good scout." Because, today, women have a brand new code and they no longer appraise each other according to the old standards.

A woman is appraised by her own sex today, exactly as a man is appraised by his own sex. Women look to each other for the same fairness and squareness and high standards of honor as men expect of each other.

We no longer say of a girl "She's a pretty little thing—and so well bred!" as if that were the acme of all that a girl could be. We don't say, "She'll make some man a nice little wife," as though we had handed her a halo.

We either say, "She's a square-shooter and a SWELL girl and has plenty above the ears" or we say nothing at all. She has to measure up to THAT, or she is on the outside looking in. That's the New Code for Women.

WITH EYES OPEN WIDE

Men may look at women through a misty haze of imagination and old-fashioned glamor. But women look at women with their eyes wide OPEN. And they no longer "kiss like billiard balls"—or fear each other like poison ivy.

A girl can be as popular as the latest song-hit. She can be a headliner on every man's telephone list—and still be trusted to play the game fairly and keep the code.

A "square-shooter" never doublecrosses another woman, never casts an eye on another woman's private property—husband or sweetheart—; never tells another woman's secrets, never stands for catty gossip and is always there when a gal needs a friend.

And, if men only knew it, a woman who is a square-shooter among women, will always be a square-shooter as a wife. She will cheerfully take her share of the burdens and do her share of the pulling, never shine or cheat or gold-dig you, and never make you look silly by flirting with other men.

Wonder why the last thing a man looks for in a woman is a CODE. Wonder why he never gets a line on the woman he's planning to marry, from her OWN SEX! They know her!

EFFECT OF BEAUTY

Upon the bosom of the lake there fell
A silver ribbon, such as brides may wear,
Of beauty I forgot my present care.

Caught by the splendor of the scene, I stood
Nameless and ageless: neither power nor place,
Nor right nor wrong, nor evil, nor the good
Existed, nor the cold wind in my face.

Until came clouds to shut the scene from me.
And then I turned once more to hope, to fear,
And be the man that I'm supposed to be.

Human Side of the News; Great Derby of the Air

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF THE HEARST METROTONE NEWS

On the early morning of October 20, sixty-four air pilots, representing sixteen nations, will set forth on the most interesting air adventure ever undertaken. For they will be straining every nerve to win the most spectacular air race ever posted on the boards of time, the grand derby from London to Melbourne.

For the well-known pilot victory will mean hard cash and enhanced fame. But to the unknown pilot it offers an opportunity for an instant leap to world-wide celebrity.

Over sea and mountain and desert the sixty-four pilots must wing their perilous way as they follow the Great Circle around the curve of the earth, the eddies of the Taurus Mountains, the sudden storms of the Bay of Bengal, the torrential downpours of the Borneo forests, the tremendous stretches of ocean from which death rides every wave. . .

PICK OF PILOTS

For many hundreds of miles along the route to be taken by these adventurers there will be no trace of water, no human life, no possibility of food or of refueling. A crackup will mean, almost certainly, the end of the game.

The pick of the world's pilots have enlisted for the rich prizes and for the celebrity which will crown the brow of the victor. Many of them, such as James and Amy Mollison and Kingford-Smith are familiar to Americans, and some, indeed, are among our best American flyers.

On Captain James Mollison's first flight to Australia he finished in just under nine days. Ulm, using a British machine, reduced the record to six days and eighteen hours. It is predicted that the winner of the London to Melbourne Derby must fly the course in five days or under.

The favorites, according to Lloyds of London, are the Mollisons, who will fly as a team; Wiley Post, the famous American round-the-world flyer, and Kingsford-Smith of Australia. Yet a dark horse may flash out of the blue to defeat them all.

A cold hard fact that every flyer knows who has entered his name in the thrilling contest is that some may never finish.

The start is from London and the finish is Melbourne. In between these 12,458 miles are oceans and deserts, mountains and forest. Sixty-four airplanes, 22 from the United States, are listed to take off in this great race with world acclaim and a prize of $50,000 to the winner.

To get home first, and the odds are 12 to 1 against any man or woman surviving, the winner is expected to make Melbourne in a little more than three days, averaging about 4000 miles of flying in each 24 hours.

OBSERVES CENTENARY

The occasion for the contest is the centenary celebration of the Australian State of Victoria. Sir MacPherson Robertson conceived the idea and posted prizes of $75,000.

Two divisions share in the prize money. The speed section is a free-for-all with $50,000 to the winner, $7500 for second and $2500 for third. The handicap division for standard type airplanes will pay $10,000 to the first to reach Melbourne and $5000 to the runnerup.

Three continents and 15 countries will be flown with 24 checking stations along the route. Roughly it runs by way of Athens, Aleppo, Bagdad, Allahabad, Calcutta, Singapore, Darwin and Melbourne. By the grand circle the mileage is 11,297 but flying restrictions add the other thousand miles. Hungary, Bulgaria and Turkey do not permit the passage of alien planes.

The northwest frontier of India is closed also, the British government having so directed because it does not want the responsibility of attempting to succor the plane or planes which might be forced down in hostile territory. As a result, the fliers must take the southern route after leaving Bagdad and follow the Persian Gulf.

AMERICAN PROTEST

A bit of an international incident was caused by the regulation first laid down by the Royal Aero of London which is the governing board for the race. Americans, especially, protested the ruling which required from each entry a certificate of airworthiness meeting European requirements. The English stand was that the race was for legitimate airplanes and not for "flying gas tanks."

The Americans countered with the argument that as applied to them the regulations would bar such planes as Col. Lindbergh's Spirit of St. Louis, Wiley Post's Winnie Mae and Frank Hawks' speed record makers.

There was quite some acrimony in the exchange of cables and opinions, but the matter was straightened out and the cream of the flying world will toe the mark. Kingsford-Smith, knighted by the King for his exploits, and rated the greatest of long distance fliers, is the likely favorite.

James and Amy Mollison are to fly one of the three mystery ships which the British de Haviland Company is building and which are guaranteed by the makers to make not less than 200 miles an hour.

The American contingent includes Colonel Roscoe Turner, who recently bettered 250 miles an hour in completing the 2500-mile trip from Los Angeles to New York in 10 hours, 2 minutes and 51 seconds. Ruth Nichols and Jacqueline Cochrans are among the women entered. Wiley Post is to be there as well as the Irish transatlantic airman, Col. Fitzmaurice

The odds against the aviators are figured in terms of the insurance premiums announced by English and American underwriters. A participant will be insured against death only at 8 per cent, which gives him a 12 to 1 chance of survival.

The premiums on the aircraft range from 10 to 20 per cent according to the value of the plane. The underwriters figure that more than a quarter of million dollars will be paid in premiums. The way is long and the odds are long. But it is a gallant band which would make the try. To each we say: "Happy landings!"

The Boston Symphony

Very soon now Serge Koussevitzky will step onto the stage and raise his baton. As it comes down for the first beat, another Boston Symphony season will be under way.

Like most humans, Bostonians are often unappreciative of the fine things in their own city. But this callousness, bred by familiarity, does not extend to the Symphony.

Here is something that is too good to be ignored or taken for granted. And so it is that season after season—in good years and bad—every concert is a sell-out. That makes the Boston Symphony the most successful organization of its kind in the country.

This box office success is based on artistic success. Koussevitzky programs are always triumphs—largely because there is almost always something new. Able conductor that he is, the doctor does not depend on the old concert wheel horses.

That he will not depart from this rule in the coming season was indicated by the enthusiasm he displayed for the younger composers on his return to Boston.

This winter we will again go out to Huntington and Massachusetts avenues full of expectation.

Power of Imagination

Such is the power of imagination that we think, now we are away from "Daylight Saving" and back on Eastern Standard time, that we find many changes. But, if we failed to read the newspapers, and no one told us about turning the hands of the clock for an hour's change, would we know anything had happened?

It's doubtful. Here we have another demonstration of the power of mind over matter. And the lesson could be made of immense value.

Leading authorities have agreed that a general restoration of confidence is what is chiefly needed to bring back prosperity.

Boston's Finest Job

There are no posters up yet, nor have any appeals been made, but the time is drawing near for Boston's best deed of the year—its contribution to the Emergency Campaign.

Interest is focused on this drive—for the benefit of more than 100 charitable organizations—by the appointment of Oscar W. Haussermann of Milton as its general chairman.

Under the direction of this able lawyer, the drive is certain to be as successful as those of past years.

And it needs to be. More than a third of Boston's population is still unemployed or dependent on part-time jobs.
